LED DRIVE AGAINST WHITE RACE—Here are two gents "we can do without." At right is Mimmo D. Guzman, 49-year-old Filipino, who spent years exhorting members of "dark-skinned races" to unite against the United States and has been arrested by the F.B.I. in New York. His activities were linked to Japan's Black Dragon society through Major Takahashi, left, of the Japanese army. Guzman is being held on draft evasion charges. Takahashi was nabbed by Detroit immigration officials in 1939 for illegal entry and was found with quantities of "anti-white" literature.

Hospitals Ask Patients To Bring Ration Cards

Hospital patients will now have one more thing to bring with them when they enter institutions for treatment. Hospital authorities today asked patients to bring their sugar, tea and coffee ration cards with them before being admitted. They said this was necessary following a new order compelling hospitals to hand in ration coupons from every patient hospitalized more than one week.

Troops' Smokes Stolen

Pilferage at sea is responsible for the loss of many cigarettes being sent from British Columbia to soldiers overseas, Hon. Herbert Anscomb, Minister of Trade and Industry, which department operates the B.C. Overseas Tobacco Fund, said today. "The government is reluctant to discontinue this valued service, but while the fund has been able to replace all shortages to date, if losses continue at present rate there would appear to be no alternative," Mr. Anscomb said. "To cite an instance—in a recent shipment, only one-third of the cigarettes reached London and shortages had to be made good from stocks on hand in England. The marine risk insurance carried does not cover pilferage losses. Heretofore losses sustained when goods were in transit by United Kingdom rail were covered by insurance, but British insurance companies have recently refused coverage from port to London." Loss through enemy action at

To Shift Workers

Conscript Labor For Canada Soon Report Predicts

MONTREAL (CP)—The Gazette said today in a special dispatch from Ottawa that the shortage of labor for essential war industries has become so acute that "early and drastic action by national selective service is foreseen here to bring about urgently needed remedies."

"It is indicated that the recruiting, choosing and allocation of labor for all purposes, military and civilian, will come under one jurisdiction," the Gazette said.

"It is probable that considerable numbers of workers may be shifted from one employment to another, but that every effort will be made to allocate individuals involved in advance of any such shift to other employment, including service in the armed forces."

"The insistent demands of essential industry and the armed forces, it is submitted, can only be met by extension of the age limits for war services, the stepping up of the utilization in industry and commerce of the services of women, older men and handicapped persons, and the cutting down of employment in non-essential industries."

MOVE TWO WAYS

"We shall shortly see labor being rushed to industry in some instances, and industry being rushed to labor in others. In the former case we shall witness housing projects springing up to accommodate the workers, and in the latter case plants erected for the workers to do their jobs."

"A major factor of the plan will be to attain as great a displacement of male labor as possible to leave national selective service free to direct manpower into both civilian and military channels where only men will do. The wholesale use of woman-power is expected to be attended by the establishment of day nurseries across the country to care for children while their mothers are at work."

"For the preparation of both men and women workers for their jobs, vocational instruction on a vast scale is visualized."

"Treatment of those in militarily eligible age groups who are barred from such service by remediable physical disability is expected to restore thousands of men to high categories."

WILL HAVE TEETH

"National selective service will have teeth. It implies compulsion, and if persuasion fails compulsion will be resorted to; and there will be, it is said, severe penalties for noncompliance on the part of either employer or employee."

"Within a few days a man or woman is likely to have to possess a certificate of approval under the control of employment order, before any employer may hire them."

WAGE EQUALITY

"To contribute to great stability of labor an effort will be made to level out the many wage inequalities existing across the country, with attention being given to working conditions, allowance for transportation and a host of other details. Hours of labor, so vital a factor in the manpower situation, it is understood, are being given immediate attention."

Mobilize Women For 100,000 War Jobs

SEATTLE (AP)—Seattle began mobilizing its womanpower today to fill in a hurry 100,000 war jobs in shipyards and aircraft factories.

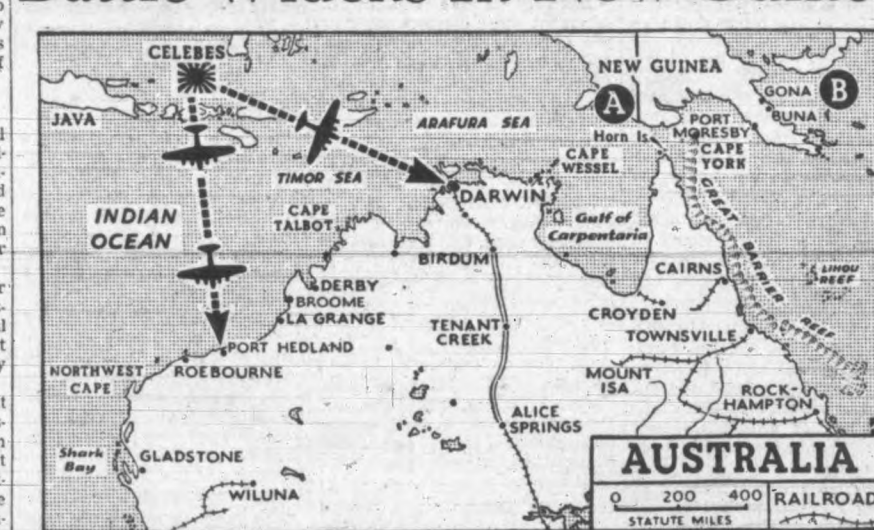

Every woman capable of doing any sort of work was asked to register during the next three days at the city's nine high schools and at schools throughout surrounding King County. The civilian war commission and the U.S. employment service, which sponsored the registration, set a goal of 25,000 applicants immediately, but said four times that many war jobs would have to be filled here eventually this year.

Fate of Scenic Timber Tract Still Uncertain

Buttle Lake timber at the gateway to Strathcona Park which loggers are now reported cutting. Conservationists are fighting to save the tract so that the beauty of Strathcona Park will remain unmarred. Upon the Hon. Wells Gray, Minister of Lands, who will return to Victoria tomorrow, depends the next step in the campaign to save the timber for the people. Cathedral Grove on the Alberni highway has been saved for the time being, pending action by the government, but no step has been taken yet to halt the loggers' invasion in the Strathcona area. Already the trail into Strathcona Park has been cut in two places by the loggers, thus shutting off the park from the public for whom it was set aside.

Battle Widens In New Guinea

Associated Press Japanese sea-borne reinforcements were reported moving down the coast of New Guinea today (B on map), bolstering a land threat to the United Nations' outpost at Port Moresby, while elsewhere in the far Pacific theatre Allied fliers hammered the enemy in many sectors. Advances to headquarters in Australia said enemy ships were en route to the Papuan peninsula, presumably to strengthen Japanese forces which landed July 22 in the Gona-Buna area across the 120-mile-wide peninsula from Port Moresby.

Fix Bail at $2,000 In Manslaughter Case

Bail was fixed at $2,000 in two sureties when Leslie "Bud" Green appeared in special provincial court today and was charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Peter Campbell, a passenger in Green's car when it plunged over the Malahat on the evening of July 24. The case was remanded to Aug. 12 at the request of defence counsel, P. J. Sinnott. Acting magistrates, Capt. George MacGregor, J.P., and Percy R. Brown, J.P., fixed the Allied headquarters said the situation was still unchanged at Kokoda, halfway across the peninsula, the farthest point of the Japanese advance toward Port Moresby. United Nations' planes strafed Japanese troops and positions in the sector Monday, starting numerous fires. Other Allied planes raided the Lae-Salamaua area, 150 miles north of Buna, and hit a Japanese cargo ship which was beached in flames.

TOKYO (From Japanese Broadcasts. AP)—Japanese planes attacked the airport and

House Hears Attlee At Secret Sitting

LONDON (CP)—The House of Commons held a secret sitting of almost an hour today and heard a statement by Clement R. Attlee, Dominions secretary and deputy Prime Minister. The nature of his message was not disclosed.

harbor at Port Hedland on the northwest Australian coast today, imperial headquarters reported.

The strength of the attackers was given as "squadrons." (Port Hedland, 800 miles by air southwest of Darwin, is the southernmost point yet reported raided by the Japanese on the west coast of Australia. It is about 600 miles from the Japanese base on Timor Island.)

Premier Curtin Answers Nehru

CANBERRA (AAP)—Pandit Nehru's statement that he hated the words Dominion status and did not want India to occupy the same status as Australia drew vigorous comment today from Prime Minister John Curtin. "Australia is proud of and completely satisfied with its status and rights as a self-governing member of the British Commonwealth of Nations," Mr. Curtin said.

Nazis Advance, Cossacks Ride Against Tanks

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW (AP)—A great weight of German tanks and reserve troops, actively supported by clouds of dive bombers, pressed heavily on the entire Soviet southern front today, and a Russian communique acknowledged Red army forces had fallen back to new positions in the Salsk region 100 miles southeast of Rostov after repulsing fierce enemy attacks.

(The Germans claimed they had captured the town of Voroshilovsk, 100 miles south of Salsk, and had reached the Kuban River at several points in that Caucasus area.)

The Salsk withdrawal came after wild-riding Cossacks, volunteering to try to stem the German drive, had ridden into battle in an effort to save their villages.

Nazis Thrown Back West of Stalingrad

West of Stalingrad, in the Kletskaya sector, the stiffening Russian troops threw back several attacks by Italian infantry supported by tanks and killed 2,000 enemy soldiers, the midday communique said. Red Star dispatches told of counterattacks in that region in which the Germans had been driven from some of their strategic positions and cut off from communications.

One bright note was struck in a dispatch to the government newspaper Izvestia which said today that the battles south of Rostov are being fought on fields covered by grain stubble, indicating collective farmers in the Caucasus had saved much of their crop despite the speed of the German advance.

In the Ordzhonikidze region, southeast of these battlefields and nearly 400 miles from Rostov, farmers were hastily gathering grain by hand and combine.

Another dispatch to Izvestia said that Germans "in superior numbers" had broken through Russian lines and were attempting to cross the Don at Kletskaya, 80 miles northwest of Stalingrad.

All German attempts to establish bridgeheads were frustrated, however, the dispatch said. Russian units were reported to have moved around the flanks of the Germans and cut off their communications. The Russians now are attempting to wipe out the advance German units before they can re-establish contact, the newspaper reported.

The Germans are striving to fly fuel and ammunition to the trapped units, but the Red air force is fighting off the supply planes, Izvestia said.

One scout unit cut in several places the main road over which the Germans were moving munitions and reserves, the army paper Red Star said.

The Cossacks had been pictured as offering furious resistance to the Germans in the Salsk area. But Red Star disclosed that the defenders were in difficulty with the somewhat negative statement that they were "succeeding in some places to hold the enemy."

Thousands of retired Cossack fighters, former members of the first Soviet cavalry army under Marshal Semeon Budenny, had volunteered to hold their beloved "Quiet Don." Both Don and Kuban Cossacks were swinging into the battle.

They were even engaging German tank units and fighting not only from horseback but also in the trenches. Riding in battle with sabres and automatic rifles, they were credited with turning back an advance by two regiments of enemy infantry covered by 80 tanks.

Cossacks Halt Rumanian Cavalry

At another point, Rumanian cavalry was sent against the Cossacks, who shouted "Ne Shagu nazad" (Not a step backward) as they galloped into battle and halted the invaders, it was reported.

From all sectors of the battlefield in the North Caucasus, the Russian story was one of unflagging, heroic defence against a shifty German drive backed up with impressive tank and air strength and a seemingly inexhaustible stream of reserves.

(Voroshilovsk, which the Germans claimed they had captured, is described as an important industrial centre. The Nazi bulletin said it fell after violent house-to-house fighting.

(Voroshilovsk is on a spur line northeast of the main Rostov-to-Baku railway and is 40 miles almost due east of Amavir, junction of the north-south Caucasus oil pipeline and a second pipeline jutting off to the port of Tuapse on the Black sea coast.)

60 Cents a Week Boost

Living Cost Bonus In Effect Aug. 15

OTTAWA (CP)—An increase of 12 points in the adjusted cost of living index, announced today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, will put extra money in the average Canadian's pay envelope after Aug. 15.

The index is the basis of calculation for compulsory cost-of-living bonuses payable to Canadians in commerce and industry.

The increase of 12 points will generally mean a 60-cent boost in bonuses now paid, except in the case of workers earning less than $25 a week, when the boost will generally be 24 per cent of their income.

Workers not now receiving the bonus will generally be paid a bonus of 60c or 24 per cent of their salary after Aug. 15, when the increase will go into effect.

The adjusted cost-of-living index on which the bonus payments are based stood at 117.0 at the beginning of last month, compared with 115.8 at June 1, and up 2.4 points over the index for last Oct. 1, basic date for bonus payment calculations.

BLAME BEEF, POTATOES

"Of the increase in the cost of living since October, 90 per cent is due to increases in food prices, and beef and potatoes accounted for 87 per cent of the total movement in food prices," said the Wartime Prices and Trade Board in a statement.

"These were seasonal movements which are in part a normal occurrence each year but were this year aggravated by special circumstances."

"It is to be expected that by Oct. 1 the great part of these seasonal movements will have

U.S. Squadron Bags 54 Jap Planes

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Navy credited a single fighter squadron in the Pacific today with having shot down a total of 54 Japanese planes in a series of four actions and said that in addition 18 enemy planes probably were destroyed. The first of the four actions was in the Coral Sea battle and the other three in the Battle of Midway.

Horror Scenes As Circus Burns

CLEVELAND (AP)—Fire today swept the menagerie tent of the Ringling Brothers Circus, destroying at least 50 wild and trained animals.

Terrified animals were burned alive in their cages before the eyes of 5,000 persons at the circus grounds on Cleveland's lakefront.

Other animals, including an elephant and several giraffes, tore loose from their manacles. Police used riot guns to destroy the giraffes.

The crowd watched the catastrophe with helpless fascination. Some of the animals raced at large, aflame. At one point when the fire was at its height, an ostrich with plumes blazing ran from the menagerie tent. The flames were patting out by circus employees and the bird was captured by trainers.

SAW 30 CARCASSES
An eyewitness counted 30 carcasses lying amid the embers of the menagerie grounds and 20 others, their pelts charred, lying in their cages.

At that time the fire was under control, although straw in the tent still was smoldering. No official estimate of the damage was immediately available, but the loss was believed to amount to tens of thousands of dollars.

The blaze apparently started on top of one of the animal cages and spread quickly through the rest of the menagerie.

All available squads of police were called to the scene to handle the noon hour crowd of 5,000 persons which was drawn by the heavy smoke and billowing flames.

Fulton, Missing, Given D.S.O.

Medals Awarded 11 Canadian Fliers

LONDON (CP)—Wing Cmdr. John (Moose) Fulton of Kamloops, B.C., Canadian bomber ace missing since the last attack on Hamburg, has been awarded the Distinguished Service Order, it was announced today in a list of R.A.F. awards which also contained the names of seven R.C.A.F. officers who won the Distinguished Flying Cross and three noncommissioned officers whose gallantry earned them the Distinguished Flying Medal.

Distinguished Flying Crosses went to Wing Cmdr. John Faulquier of Ottawa, commander of a Halifax bomber squadron; Flt. Lieut. Jack Vincent Watts of Hamilton, Ont.; Flt. Lieut. Charles Stuart Dowle of London, Sask.; F.O. Raymond Joseph Hardingham of Kingswood, Surrey; P.O. Colin Summers Campbell of Vancouver; P.O. Bruce Darwin Croxson of Vancouver, and P.O. John Kearns Tett, native of Kingston, Ont.

Distinguished Flying Medals were awarded to Flt. Sgt. Charles Edmund Darby of Harrow, Ont.; Flt. Sgt. (now Warrant Officer) Thomas Henry Donnelly of Toronto, and Flt. Sgt. (now P.O.) Cecil Arnold Robson of Colchester, N.S.).

NURSED PLANE HOME
Fulton's citation says in part: "This officer participated in attacks on industrial targets, dockyards, airfields and other important enemy targets. On one flight in April of this year he successfully attacked Kiel. On the return journey his aircraft was attacked by an enemy fighter while flying at a height of 15,000 feet. Fulton's aircraft sustained much damage. One blade of the port propeller was shot away, the rear turret was completely shattered and the rear gunner wounded. The hydraulic system was damaged and many of the aircraft's instruments were rendered unserviceable. The damaged propeller caused intense vibration.

"To offset this, Fulton decided to continue the journey on one engine. The aircraft would not maintain height, however, and descended to some 20 feet above the level of the sea. Fulton was compelled to restart the port engine and succeeded in regaining height.

"The vibration commenced again and continued in an alarming manner until his base was reached, where an excellent landing was made with the undercarriage retracted.

"This officer's skill and determination were responsible for the safe return of his damaged aircraft and his crew after a hazardous flight of some 118 miles after the aircraft had been attacked."

CALLED BORN LEADER
Thirty-three-year-old Fauquier, commander of No. 405 squadron, is described in the citation as "a born leader." The citation continued, "through the many sorties in which he participated, this officer has displayed the highest qualities of courage and leadership" and added "his ability and grim determination to inflict the maximum damage on the enemy have won the admiration of the squadron he commands."

Fauquier, a former bush flier, personally led his squadron on two 1,000-bomber raids and went out again on new operations the following nights, "despite physical and mental fatigue after organizing and leading the two previous operations."

SKILLED NAVIGATOR
Watts, 22, is hailed as "a courageous and highly-skilled navigator who has done much to ensure the success of the many sorties in which he has participated."

Dowle's citation says the 28-year-old member of No. 408 squadron of the R.C.A.F. is "a skillful, determined pilot who has achieved success against heavily defended targets" in Germany and Nazi-occupied territory, and whose "courage in the face of enemy fire has set an inspiring example."

Hardingham, 30, is a squadron navigation officer of No. 408 squadron. A native of London, he enlisted in the R.C.A.F. in 1940 and trained in Canada. He participated in many sorties, including one against the German battleship Scharnhorst as it sailed north from France through the English Channel.

Campbell, serving in 103 squadron of the R.A.F., is cited as "a fearless and reliable navigator" whose conduct under fire "proved of inestimable value to his crew." The citation adds that this 28-year-old flier "has always endeavored to concentrate his attack on the point of aim and allows nothing to deter him from his purpose."

Stadium Crowd In Panic; 3 Die, 14 Others Hurt

MONTREAL (CP)—Three persons lost their lives and a score were injured in a panic that followed a small fire outbreak Monday night in the Ontario stadium, opposite the Montreal Royals ball park in the east end.

The dead were identified by police as Mrs. Mathilda Cote, 63, Denise Wistaff, eight, and an unidentified woman of about 25.

Mrs. Cote was crushed to death in a rush at one of the exits. The Wistaff girl was fatally injured in the same crush and died before reaching hospital.

Police said they thought most of 14 persons, now in hospital, will recover. However, they added, two are in a serious condition. Names of the injured were not immediately available but police said some were children who had accompanied their parents to the show.

The more seriously injured include Mrs. J. B. Carboneau, 71; Mrs. Aurore Denis, 53; Mrs. Adelaide Wistaff, 42, mother of the dead girl, and Miss Claire Lapointe, 20.

Police said they thought that the rest of the injured will recover.

'AMATEUR NIGHT'
The dead were in an audience of 2,000 persons watching an "amateur night" variety show in the semi-outdoor stadium when a small fire broke out under the south wooden stands.

Despite the efforts of entertainers and arriving firemen, a panic started and in a crush at one of the exits, Mrs. Cote and 12 others were trampled on.

Squads of police and ambulances converged on the scene and the injured were taken to nearby hospitals. Some of them were treated on the spot.

The fire, of unknown origin, was quickly extinguished with little damage.

Meantime across the street in the big baseball park Montreal Royals were playing an International League game with Baltimore Orioles.

Witnesses said that as soon as the blaze was discovered the audience rushed to the doors in one mass, many screaming frantically. They said that only one stream of water was required to bring the small blaze under control.

Tea Ration Rush Probed
Suspicion that individual attempts to beat the tea and coffee rationing regulations are being made in Victoria is seen in a statement by Wartime Prices and Trade Board officials today to the effect that investigations into infractions are being made.

Unofficial reports say that some grocery stores were stampeded Sunday night when the rationing order was announced without warning and that many householders laid in stocks of tea and coffee as a result.

Wartime Prices Board officials point out that incidents of this nature would not come within their province since rationing did not go into effect until Monday.

City police say they have no evidence of any breaking of the law in this respect Sunday and could only take action if definite information were laid. Sunday purchasing is an offence under provisions of the Lord's Day Act and prosecutions may be made by the Attorney-General's Department.

Monday a number of unsuccessful attempts were made to beat the rationing, customers at some large stores ignoring sales clerks and helping themselves to packages of tea and taking them direct to the cashier.

At some smaller stores proprietors were under the impression that rationing was not yet effective and sold a considerable quantity of tea and coffee to those customers who were willing to take advantage of the situation.

Meanwhile investigations by Wartime Prices officials here are continuing, decisions to prosecute being up to the head office of the board at Ottawa.

One, Two, Three Strikes—But Not Out

These dramatic photos show one of the hazards risked to keep Allied supply lines open. Here a United Nations' ship, part of a convoy which has just brought troops and material to Port Moresby, Allies' advance base in New Guinea, is attacked by Jap bombers. First bomb, above left, explodes off ship's bow. The next, right, are closer, bow and stern.

... Then the Japs get the range and a rain of bombs ring the vessel, shooting up high spouts of water which almost obscure the ship. No direct hits are recorded in these pictures.

Lou Moriarty Tangles With Nazi Over Europe

By LOUIS V. HUNTER

WITH THE R.C.A.F. SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND (CP)—A Wellington bomber piloted by Flt. Sgt. L. E. Moriarty of Victoria, B.C., tangled with a Nazi night fighter over Bremen and came home with a "damaged" to its credit.

Moriarty's rear gunner, Sgt. Jack Hollingsworth of Montreal, got most of the licks at the fighter. He fired about 500 rounds at the German before he took to the clouds, and Moriarty wheeled his bomber into another cloud and headed for home.

Sgt. Jim Love of Dauphin, Man., is also a member of the crew which flies with an R.A.F. squadron.

Moriarty is the son of C. Moriarty, staff correspondent of the Canadian Press in Victoria. He made his freshman trip to Cologne the night R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. squadrons turned that industrial centre into a sea of fire and destruction.

Other Canadians in the squadron are Flt. Lt. H. L. Lindo of Vancouver, navigation officer, P.O.'s Murray Forman of Calgary and Colin Campbell of Victoria. Campbell has completed a lengthy tour of operational hours and at present is attached in a training capacity.

Noncommissioned air crew include Warrant Officer R. Telfer, Okotoks, Alta.; Flt. Sgt. John Carey, Winnipeg, and Sgts. Al Pearson, Ottawa; F. J. L. Harrett, Moncton, N.B., and John Beaupre, Outremont, Que.

WORKED HERE
Moriarty, formerly employed in the audit branch of the provincial government also was on raids over Essen and Emden before the Bremen show. He now is captain of a four-motor Halifax bomber. He was born in Victoria.

His plane came back from Cologne with both bomb doors open, undercarriage hanging, the port engine pounding like a boiler factory and the cowlings of his Wellington smashed to pieces by flak. He wrote that England never looked better to anyone than when he sighted its coast.

In another letter just received in Victoria "Lou" said: "We have been pretty busy. When it is good weather we do a lot of operational work. I've passed the rookie stage and hope my luck holds out. I've had some pretty shaky moments, the last one on the Bremen trip.

"We set off in my regular kite (Wellington), everything going nicely. Good visibility, and the old engines purring along like silk. Just as we got near the Dutch coast they started throwing up some light flak from the flak ships.

"I don't bother much about that stuff, but all of a sudden they stopped. I began to sit up and take notice. Jack Hollingsworth, from Montreal, my front gunner, began to mutter something over the 'intercom' system, and then I saw it coming hell-bent for election after us.

LOU MORIARTY
... Twisted and turned.

"It was a night fighter, with a searchlight in the nose, and popping cannon shells. I said that 'this was no place for Wimpy,' and turned toward him to give Jack a shot. I put my nose down, slammed the throttles open and prayed my good old Wimpy would hold together.

"Jack popped about 500 rounds at Jerry, and Jerry popped plenty back at us. I turned and twisted like a snake and thought: 'won't the cloud tops ever come.' We finally went through the clouds at 3,000 feet, and lost him. I had over 320 miles per hour on the clock and had to jettison my bombs to pull her out.

"She groaned and yelled, but straightened out, and we made for home. I used to think that polo was exciting, but Jerry plays for keeps, not fun.

"I now am captain of a four-engine Halifax bomber. She is a beauty, with lots of speed and armament for daylight sweeps."

Moriarty has high praise for British Columbia House.

"The cigarettes and tobacco arrive regularly from B.C. House. It is a swell service they give the boys, and we surely appreciate it," he said.

Nazi Manpower Cut 27 Per Cent By Raids
LONDON (CP)—R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. bombing raids have produced a critical situation in Hamburg and other north German ports and pinned down in defence work 27 per cent of the potential manpower available for the Nazi armed forces and war industries, Reuters correspondent on the German frontier reported today.

He wrote the potential manpower available for war industries and armed services was estimated at 22,000,000, of which 6,000,000 were pinned down by the heavy raids.

He added that the poundings of Hamburg, Bremen, Luebeck, Rostock and other ports have caused a heavy shipping congestion.

Plead With Japs Gandhi's Plan If India Freed

NEW DELHI (CP)—The government of India reported today that Mohandas K. Gandhi had proposed to the All-India Congress Party this declaration:

"If India were freed, her first step probably would be to negotiate with Japan."

Gandhi himself, in Bombay, acknowledged use of such language, but suggested it was for bargaining purposes and he said he wanted to help China.

The statement on negotiating with Japan was contained in Gandhi's recent draft of a resolution calling for a civil disobedience campaign by the All-India Congress Party.

Today he said: "I purposely incorporated the sentence about negotiations with Japan, and if ultimately (at a later meeting) it was dropped, I associated myself with the deletion."

He said that if India were freed immediately he wanted to go to Japan and "plead with her to free China." If this plea were rejected, he then would tell the Japanese to expect "stubborn resistance" in India, he added.

Ex-Movie Director J. H. Cruze Dies
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—James H. Cruze, 58, once one of the screen's great directors, but almost forgotten in recent years in fast-moving Hollywood, died early today at his home. He had been in ill health for several years.

Born in Ogden, Utah, he came to Hollywood in his early days with a background of the stage, stock melodrama, Shakespeare and medicine shows. He quickly became a top figure in the industry with such memorable productions as "Merton of the Movies," the first "Ruggles of Red Gap," and "City That Never Sleeps."

He is best remembered, probably for "Old Ironsides," "Miracle Man" and the powerful "The Covered Wagon." In 1926 and 1928 he was selected as one of the 10 best directors in a nation-wide poll. In 1938, when he retired, his films had fallen far below the records of a decade before.

He once was married to Betty Compson, blonde screen siren.

Passenger Testifies
Maintaining that the car was driven at a safe speed during the entire trip, Thomas Jones, the sole rumble seat passenger, who managed to jump as the car went over the brink, told the jury that it was the gravel at the side of the road that caused the car to go out of control and over the side. He said the auto was not traveling at more than 30 miles per hour when the accident occurred.

Manslaughter Charge Follows Malahat Crash

Leslie "Bud" Green, 1286 Montrose Avenue, was taken into custody at 6 Monday afternoon by provincial police and charged with manslaughter, the charge arising from an accident at 8.45 on the night of July 24, when Green's auto, plunged over the embankment at the Malahat Summit and dropped 500 feet, killing Peter Campbell, 1050 Falmouth Road, 43-year-old bus driver, who was a passenger in the front seat of the car. The crash injured, besides himself, Ronald Reid and Thomas Jones, both of Victoria.

The arrest followed a finding of a coroner's jury at Sands Mortuary, which deliberated for over an hour before bringing in a verdict that Green showed culpable neglect in the death of Campbell. The jury heard evidence for almost two hours before retiring to make their decision.

Green was arrested by Corpl. John Henry, in charge of the Duncan detachment of the provincial police, who laid the information. Immediate trial in police court, if Green chooses such, or preliminary hearing if he asks for trial in a higher court, will be held at Duncan, police said.

The jury was at liberty to bring in one of three verdicts, accidental death, culpable neglect or manslaughter. They chose the intermediary cause, but police laid the charge under the last named, the most serious charge.

SAY SPEED WAS HIGH
Giving testimony at the inquest, which preceded the arrest, Mrs. Louisa Done, Cobble Hill, a passenger in a car going south over the Malahat, said a car, which she supposed to be Green's auto, passed her at a high rate of speed, estimating it at between 50 and 60 miles an hour. She said she did not see the accident, but saw police and bystanders on the return trip later in the evening.

Raymond Stokes, who said he was driving north on the Island Highway, near Goldstream, at 30 miles per hour, stated that a car answering to the description of Green's vehicle, passed him on the way up island.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Rieckl, traveling south on the Gorge Road, near Harriet Road, both testified they saw a car, which they believed to be Green's, pass three cars on the wrong side on its way north. They stated it was traveling at a high rate of speed. The time of this was 8.25. The crash occurred at 8.45.

BLAMES GRAVEL
Green, represented by P. J. Sinnott, who claimed benefit of the Canada Evidence Act before the driver of the fatal car gave his evidence, said he had swerved to the right side of the road at the summit to give clearance to an oncoming car, and his wheels became enmeshed in loose gravel. He said the steering wheel spun out of his hands and he was not able to pull back the car quickly enough. He said it pushed over the guard rail, hovered on the brink of the road for a split second, then toppled down the almost perpendicular bank.

He stated he was thrown out of the car, a 1937 Plymouth coupe, and then crawled back to the road, where he stopped a south-bound car, which took him to Buller's store, a few hundred yards toward Victoria, from where he summoned help. He told the jury he was traveling at 20 or 25 miles per hour at the time of the accident.

Green said the guard rail, through which his car crashed, was not broken, but pushed over. He stated it was not firmly embedded in the sand at the side of the road. He said a pile of gravel, over a foot high and four feet from the side of the road, caused his car to swerve. He stated that he had two or three glasses of beer before he left for Duncan.

U.S. Army Rules Out Stomach Ulcers

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J.—Stomach ulcers, which have been a cause of much disability in the British and Canadian armies, are being effectively ruled out of the American army by present recruiting policies, according to figures revealed by Col. John L. Kantor, U.S. Army Medical Reserve, to the American Medical Association.

Examinations by the army induction boards are four to five times as efficient in revealing ulcers as the life insurance examinations of civil life, Col. Kantor declared. Local induction boards rejected men with ulcers at the rate of 4.4 per 1,000 and army induction boards have rejected them at the rate of 5.3 per 1,000. Life insurance statistics give the rate of ulcers found in men under 35 years as only one per 1,000.

Stomach ulcers rank high as a cause of disability for military service and are increasingly common in both military and civil life, Col. Kantor declared. They lead all other digestive diseases as a cause of discharge from the regular army.

Vaccinations against cholera, given to all soldiers likely to be sent to parts of the world where cholera exists, anti-typhoid vaccinations and careful attention to sanitation and good food are measures taken by the army to protect the American soldier from digestive diseases. In peace, these diseases ranked third as a cause of admission to sick report, third as cause of lost time and discharge for disability and fourth as cause of death.

DATE BUREAU OPENED AT U.B.C.

VANCOUVER — Lonely students attending summer school sessions at the University of British Columbia need pine no longer.

Executives on the campus have organized a date bureau in the auditorium, presided over by a group of pretty co-eds.

The date bureau is "arranging partners for the annual summer session ball Friday or for a quiet show or long walk."

"Place your order," the girls say, "and we'll try and fill it."

Speaks at Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario leader of the C.C.F. party, told a C.C.F. Labor picnic on Toronto Island Monday that the attorney-general's department at Queen's Park was "more interested in looking after its political friends than in a fair administration of the laws of the province."

Colin Cameron, C.C.F. member for Comox in the British Columbia Legislature, told the gathering the burden laid on the C.C.F. was the burden of knowledge.

"We know that the policies under which we live in peace are disastrous in war and we know that great changes are taking place in our economic system," said Mr. Cameron.

He said the C.C.F. is determined that those who came back from this war will not find "bitterness and disappointment like the veterans of the first Great War."

Air Cadets Get Thrill of Life

One thousand seven hundred and fifty boys from 50 squadrons of the Air Cadet League from towns and cities in No. 4 Training Command have spent a week this summer on service flying training schools. The summer camps were concluded on Saturday, and each cadet enjoyed the thrill and experience of living for a week the life of an airman. The boys were billeted in station huts, where they slept on comfortable spring beds with mattresses. They said the quality of the food, so important in the estimation of 'teen-age boys, was excellent on all stations.

Service Flying Training Schools have been selected for Air Cadet camps because of the wider scope of training regularly given on these stations, and because of the varied and extensive equipment there. As an example while on service flying stations, the cadets are given the opportunity of examining several types of aircraft in actual operation.

In addition to regular periods of drill and physical training each boy was given an opportunity to test his natural flying ability in a Link trainer. It is a replica of an airplane cockpit and is equipped with the various instruments. The controls operate exactly as in a plane, and the student banks the "craft," takes altitude and manoeuvres exactly as in actual flying. Perhaps the time in the Link was the highlight for each cadet during his week on station.

While the organization is under the direction of the Royal Canadian Air Force, each squadron is self-sustaining either directly or by local sponsorship.

A CLEVELAND PLAN

The plan adopted by the White Motor Co. of Cleveland seems to be such a good one for solving the problem of workers sharing their cars for transportation to and from work, that I wonder if it could not be adopted to advantage by local workers. One sees car after car with only one occupant. The plan, according to The New Republic, is as follows:

"Every employee who regularly drives a car to work receives 10 celluloid tokens, each of which is good for a one-way trip in another man's car. When he drives his own car, he collects tokens from his passengers; when he leaves his car at home, he buys himself a ride with one of these. By being diligent about picking up token-paying passengers for a week, he can ride on other men's tires and gas for a month. Maps are furnished dividing the city into squares and identifying the homes of all workers in each area. Cars from one section of town are parked together at the plant. The men sign pledges to drive slowly, take care of their tires and keep their cars in good shape. They have windshield stickers to enable token-bearing prospective passengers to hail them on the street."

'SCIENTIFIC SOCIALISM'

In view of the confusion which exists in the minds of your various correspondents, may I point out that, when the "scientific socialists" speak of common ownership of the means and instruments of producing and distributing wealth by and in the interest of society as a whole, we mean the taking over by society of all factories, land, railways, mines, steamships; in fact, everything which is essential to the welfare of society as a whole. We would abolish capitalist institutions; by that we don't mean to break up the present day machinery so essential to produce for the comfort and well-being of society, but to abolish institutions such as the wage system, the monetary system, banks, mortgage companies, etc., etc.

Socialists understand clearly that capitalism and the wage system are synonymous, inasmuch as capitalism in any form is impossible apart from the wage system, and conversely the wage system could not function in any society except capitalism. And wherever you find these two there you find the monetary system so essential for the exchange of the various commodities in present day society.

Yet we find the wage system in existence in every country of the world today, including Russia, which in itself denies the existence of Socialism; in spite of Mr. Sanders' superiority complex, there is no such society as State Socialism.

State capitalism takes on various forms according to the state of development of the machinery of production, and the conditions which exist in those countries. One may, as in Russia, control all means of production and distribution—imports and exports. Another, as in Germany, may control part of this machinery, allowing others to remain in private hands, providing they produce the goods necessary for the state. Should they refuse, the state steps in and takes over the factories, paying the shareholders the value of same in bonds, as in Russia, where they pay as high as 10 or 12 per cent interest. Where a new set of owners is coming into being, due to their holding so many bonds, they are becoming a powerful minority in control over the majority, which means exploitation of the most intense form. Hence, we claim the same political form exists in Russia, Germany and Italy, viz., state capitalism, which means the subjection of the entire nation to the needs and requirements of the state.

So long as the C.C.F., Labor or Social Democratic parties advocate state capitalism, they are detrimental to the interest of the working class. To those who think of this problem against the present background of property interest and national rivalries, it presents overwhelming difficulties.

To the Socialist who sees that with the abolition of the capitalist basis the urge towards co-operation is released from its present imprisonment, then the problem of Socialism falls into its proper perspective.

COST-OF-LIVING BONUS

One reads with amazement the notice in the press that representatives of our civic employees—during a conciliation conference in the city hall on Saturday morning—requested a cost-of-living bonus of $16.25 per month.

"The civic employees must know that many people in Victoria do not receive more than $16.25 altogether per month and are consequently undernourished. As for new clothes and shoes and other needs, they must do without them."

It is quite time that our governments consider the state of many of our citizens instead of adding $16.25 to the wages of well-paid civic employees, who also have good pensions coming to them in the future.

Hamilton Saves Gasoline

Warns Against Rushing 2nd Front

CHICAGO (AP)—A British army officer and member of Parliament told the C.I.O.-United Automobile Aircraft, agricultural implement workers' convention Monday that "if we want to lose this war, let us open an inopportune second front and be forced out of the continent again."

Capt. C. C. Poole, Labor M.P., spoke at the opening session. President R. J. Thomas of the U.A.W. had urged opening of the second front as soon as possible in a broadcast address and at a rally before the convention got under way.

"It is no foregone conclusion that we shall win," Capt. Poole declared. "We shall win only if we deserve to."

He said the decision as to starting a second European front to aid Russia was one requiring the most expert judgment of American and British military leaders, and added:

"I think all the newspaper and armchair strategists should be loaded into the first boat and make the landing."

Senator Pepper Urges 2nd Front

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Allies should cast caution aside and hit Hitler now, Senator Claude Pepper (Dem., Fla.) said Monday in urging the immediate opening of a second front.

In an address to the Washington Industrial Union Council rally in support of a second front,

AUGUST FUR SALE Malleks

Pepper said "the instinct of America today senses that nothing we can do is so dangerous as to do nothing."

Criticizing those who use the word "impossible," Pepper said: "The genius of America has been its unwillingness to admit that anything was impossible. No mountain was too high to scale. No vein too deep in the bosom of the earth to be inaccessible. No stream too wide to span. No continent too difficult to cross. Americans did not ask whether it could be done. They did it."

Nehru More Truculent

INTERVIEWED IN JUBBULPORE TODAY, Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru—who is on his way to Bombay for the All-India Congress meeting next Friday—said that not only ratification of the proposed civil disobedience movement would be voted but also that a detailed program would be drawn up for a spirited campaign to be started in two weeks. He added that it would be "short, swift and effective," would "last about three months, and decide the country's fate." The object of the campaign is to obtain complete independence for India at once. Only such a concession would satisfy the Congress, and Nehru pooh-poohs the compromise idea.

Were it not for the fact that the world in general has learned a good deal recently about India, and especially about the leaders of the subcontinent's dominant political party, the peoples of the United Nations would be more seriously disturbed than ever by Nehru's latest outburst. But there is growing evidence that recent statements from both Gandhi and Nehru are causing genuine alarm among the millions of Hindus who are not blind to the grave consequences which may result from the practical application of an organized movement of "non-violent non-cooperation." Eighty million Muslims, of course, are implacably opposed to Congress Party domination, while additional millions unaffiliated with any political movement are becoming more realistic as they hear the din of the enemy's battering at the very gates of their land.

Only the course of events will reveal whether Nehru's fresh outburst is a final attempt to exploit the emergency of the moment, a last call to the British government to come to heel, or whether it is an indirect appeal to the United States, Russia, and China to use their influence with London before the Congress makes its decision. Regardless of the specific object of the Pandit's statement, however, the Axis partners will welcome it with unbounded satisfaction. They would like to "decide the country's fate."

Gallant Norway's King

WHEN IT IS POSSIBLE TO ASSEMBLE the chronicles of this war of the continents and the oceans, and write of the conflict in proper perspective, the historian will assign an important chapter to Norway's important role—not in the realm of the spectacular, but as a nation which cheerfully suffered all the indignities and cruelties inflicted by a brutal foe in temporary possession of its territory. Small wonder Norwegian soldiers, sailors, airmen, and a goodly number of working patriots saluted King Haakon in London yesterday on the occasion of his 70th birthday. Nor is it necessary to recall specifically at this stage the magnificent conduct of the monarch who defied the invaders of his realm, who turned the deaf ear to all suggestions of a compromise with the foe, who remained with his gallant army until no other course was open to him and his government but to retreat to England and carry on Norway's wartime business in exile.

To add special point to the King's birthday celebrations, to acquaint the peoples of the United Nations in tangible and permanent form with some of Norway's democratic history since she emerged as an independent sovereign state in 1905, and to reduce to word and picture the events of the last two years, the Norwegian Information Office in Montreal has just issued a handsomely-illustrated and ably-compiled volume entitled "All for Norway." It is a work not only outstanding for its literary and pictorial content, it breathes an optimism which is a challenge to the common enemy and serves to assure the world that the land over which King Haakon VII has ruled with such conspicuous democratic bearing and understanding sympathy for 37 years will live again and take its rightful place among the free nations of the earth. Heartily does Canada salute the brave Norwegian people and look forward to the day when the brutal occupants of their land shall get their just desserts.

Poor 'Entertainer'

LADY ASTOR HAS THE UNHAPPY AND unfortunate knack of saying the wrong thing at the wrong time. It mattered little what she said in normal times; the House of Commons had grown used to her exhibitionism. But she put her foot in it badly on Saturday when she remarked to an audience in Southampton that "the Russians are not fighting for us; they are fighting for themselves." Our gallant allies, of course, are doing both; all the United Nations likewise. This is a case of one for all and all for one. It cannot be otherwise. But the erstwhile guiding light of the "Cliveden Set"—latterly bracketed under the all-embracing title of "The Munichers"—knew when she spoke thus of the Russians that she would be justly accused of bad taste. It has remained for the London Daily Herald, however, to remind her pointedly that she has acquired an exaggerated idea of her own entertainment value. We can imagine how either Mr. Churchill or Mr. Eden would have dealt with her if her remarks had been made in the House of Commons.

It is unfortunately true, incidentally, that in this country and in the United States, as well as in Britain, there is an element which would prefer to see Germany and Russia fight out the European battle themselves. Regardless of the fact that nine out of ten of this small minority could not explain their objection to the political philosophy practiced by our gallant Soviet allies, they are obsessed by the idea that "all the best people" hate Communism like the devil hates holy water; so they must keep up with the Joneses. As Mr. Churchill and Mr. Eden have said, it is Russia's business how she runs her internal affairs; and we should be thanking our lucky stars that her system has produced a type of national unity which has withstood the most vicious attack ever made on any nation before. Lady Astor and her ilk should keep their mouths shut if they can think of nothing better than insulting innuendo. Axis propaganda in the meantime, of course, will note the remarks of the Tory member for the Sutton division of Plymouth.

English and French

TO THE SUGGESTION APPEARING IN numerous letters in the newspapers of the country that Canada should have one language only, a correspondent points out—quite properly—that advocates of the idea are overlooking the fact that the matter of the two languages was definitely settled for all time in the British North America Act which is, after all, Canada's constitution. The point is well taken in itself; that document is not to be regarded as a mere scrap of paper. The correspondent is not a French Canadian; but he asks "why not show our good faith by learning French; we should not forget that the people of Quebec are also British and have more than lived up to their part of the agreement on numerous occasions." Truly said; and English is not the "mother tongue" to them. The history of Canada does not begin with the thunder of Wolfe's cannon.

If we could have our way, the learning of French would be compulsory in our educational curricula. Take the point a little further and consider the value of languages to the rising generation. One of the reasons why German traders at the beginning of the present century succeeded so substantially in many countries of the world was simple to understand: Young businessmen were sent to distant lands, first to learn their languages, and secondly to learn their commercial methods. "Volunteer" German workers were numbered by the thousand in London alone in the years prior to the first Great War. Nine out of ten heads of the foreign correspondence departments of the larger British firms were held by Germans—because the hard-headed trader was more likely to get business if translations in the office of his prospective customer abroad were unnecessary. After this war has been brought to an end the knowledge of French, Spanish, Chinese and other languages will be invaluable to Canada's trade envoys in the world's capitals.

The Old Refrain

ON SUNDAY OUR MORNING CONTEMPORARY complained bitterly of what it has so often called the "spendthrift zeal" of all governments which do not stand for the political philosophy to which it subscribes—outmoded though it may be. Nothing the King government does or could hope to do would satisfy the Colonist. For the last quarter of a century it has used "spendthrift zeal" as its blanket charge against successive Dominion Liberal governments and successive Liberal governments in this province. It dropped the term only during the tragic interlude of Mr. Bennett at Ottawa and Dr. Tolmie in British Columbia. These two periods of federal and provincial conservative rule, however, evidently were of too short duration to allow our contemporary to forget its hoary phrase.

But how does the Colonist reconcile its Sunday view with that of this morning? Today's argument is opposed to the adjournment of Parliament; it contends that it "has but little of accomplishment to look back upon with pride in its late session," but "that does not alter the argument in favor of continuing its deliberations with but short interludes in these fateful times." However, if the Colonist has such a low opinion of the government, how can it conceive of it directing Parliament along any lines save those that would enable it to renew its charge of continual "spendthrift zeal"? And just what precisely would the morning paper have Parliament deal with at this juncture? It ought to consult Mr. Hanson.

Notes

A person who talks to himself may be crazy, but at $282,000 a year, Edgar Bergen would be crazy not to.

First of the postwar moves will have to be one of those Ottawa directives telling us to forget the word "directive."

During 1941 there were in Canada 231 labor disputes involving 87,091 workers and causing loss of 438,914 man-working days, according to the latest Department of Labor release. In Britain, including Northern Ireland, during the same year there were 1,241 disputes with a loss of 1,075,000 man-working days. A total of 22,923,374 working days was lost through strikes in the United States in 1941. In round numbers, the total is 24,000,000 man-working days. How many tanks and guns and ships do they represent as lost to the United Nations in the year?

War Dogs

LORD BYRON, who loved a dog, smote his lyre in praise:
'Tis sweet to hear the watchdog's honest bark
Bay deep-mouthed welcome as we draw near home;
'Tis sweet to know there is an eye will mark
Our coming, and look brighter when we come.

But the sentry dog's honest bark may not sound sweet in the ears of any submarine commander who is trying to land spies along our coastline, and it will bring terror to the saboteur who is trying to make his way into some storehouse of war supplies.

"If you happen to miss your pet pooch in the next few weeks, don't fret, perhaps he's run away to enlist in the army," said a facetious news writer who sent out the Associated Press article about Dogs for Defence, Inc., which is training dogs for sentry duty and coastguard service at the request of the Quartermaster-General. There is little chance of any canine small fry getting into the service, however, no matter how eager they may be to enlist. Their place, and that of all dogs of dubious ancestry, is in or around the home. To meet the enemy, the army is using only thoroughbred dogs, and only those large enough to be formidable.

Dogs have already been used on almost all world battlefronts, and instead of introducing an innovation in warfare, we are simply being a little late again: Germany sent 25,000 purebred dogs to Japan before the attack on Pearl Harbor, for coastguard duty. Recently on the Kailmin front, German tanks bearing down on Soviet dugouts, and hearing dogs bark, turned back—but not soon enough. The dogs attacked and their leader, Tom, quickly blew up a German tank. Some of the retreating tanks were pursued to their doom. The Russian dogs carried high explosives, and most, if not all of them, sacrificed their lives for their homeland.

In Russia, dogs serve in the army medical corps, carrying dressings on the field of battle, and to wounded men in remote, inaccessible places; they pull sled transports through the snow, and serve as messengers who are not afraid of the fire of battle. Mayakovsky, the Russian poet, went Byron one better when he said: "Dogs are fine men."

END OF A FINE OLD SCHOOL

The Ottawa Ladies' College, founded in 1869, has passed out of existence, the government having taken over its building as headquarters for the Canadian Women's Army Corps.

The Ottawa Journal says it is news that will shock and grieve thousands of graduates and hosts of friends of this venerable institution of learning and culture which had E. B. Eddy as its first president. That is true because the Ottawa Ladies' College has had a great and intimate part in forming the character of this community and the country—it has been an effective influence on the side of the angels.

Mr. Fraser Elliott, chairman of the board of trustees, put all this in excellent words:

"In one sense a school is made up of bricks and mortar and equipment, and its value in dollars and cents can be computed in terms of these commodities. But these only comprise the shell which houses the real living part of the school. . . . Courtesy and thoughtfulness were stressed (at the Ottawa Ladies' College) as well as arithmetic; good sportsmanship and team play were not forgotten in absorption of Latin and French; high moral standards and a real understanding of the principles of democratic living have been woven through the life of the school."

That is the stuff out of which a school's tradition is built, and that is why the Ottawa Ladies' College for seven decades has been a beneficial power in this city. There are families which have sent three or four generations of their girls to this school, and to them especially, and to all who know its fine record, it is more than brick and mortar and equipment. The war has taken it from us, but the Ladies' College will be greatly missed and long remembered.

LISTEN! THE PIPES

Oh, dinna ye hear them, they're sounding again,
As they did at Coruna and Lucknow, and then
At Dargah's Heights, Magersfontein and Loos.
Now in Egypt and Libya they're still "crawlin' crouse."

They are played by the men of the kiln and the plaid
Wherever Scotsmen are man unafraid
To uphold the law and defend what is right.
The tyrant to humble, the bully to fight.

And when the war's over, we'll hear them again,
"McCrimmon's Lament" played in mountain and glen.
"The Flowers o' the Forest," "Lochaber No More,"
Plaintively sounding on auld Scotland's shore.

Then they'll skirl once more as the pipers wi' pride
Play the tunes that will honor the men who have died.

The tunes with a lilt, so dear to the Scot,
That wherever he goes will ne'er be forgot.

So here's to the sound of the pibroch so shrill
When it's played to rally all men of good will,
"The Campbells Are Coming," "Blue Bonnets," "Dundee."

"The Road to the Isles" will aye rouse you and me.
—Andrew Gemmell, in Montreal Star.

'Moving' Japs in B.C.

From Hansard Report, House of Commons Debates

J. G. Turgeon (Cariboo): I wish to speak on this question of the Japanese in British Columbia largely from the same position as taken by the member from Yale (Mr. Stirling). The Japanese are being moved from what has been declared the protected area of the coast into the southern portion of the Cariboo electoral district, particularly in the Bridge River country, in Lillooet, along the Cariboo highway as well as along the Pacific Great Eastern railway. I agree entirely that the first duty relating to the evacuation of Japanese is to take them out of that portion of Canada which has been declared by the military to be a protected area. I am not rising to criticize; I am rising rather to give publicly a warning to the minister which I have given him in personal conversations and in letters, both to himself and to the deputy minister.

These Japanese are being moved from a protected area into another part of Canada, which before long will itself be declared a protected area. They must be moved; I agree with that, and that is one reason why I have not made any loud protests. They have all, I am told, been moved from Vancouver Island, which I think was the first action indicated by the presence of the Japanese on the outbreak of the war with Japan. They should next be moved from Vancouver city, and they must be moved somewhere. But we have today the danger of attack across Alaska and the Aleutian Islands and the danger of attack across Prince Rupert, and when these points become nearer to absolute battlefields than they are today, then the task will have to be undertaken of moving from that area all the Japanese who are now being permitted to go into it.

I personally am a little afraid that some of the men talked of today by two hon. members: men who were taken from roadwork because they did not like the conditions surrounding that work are being joined with their families in the interior portion of British Columbia which is soon going to be considered a militarily strategic area. There is great talk of building by the U.S. military authorities of the railway from Prince George to Alaska. If they build that railway from Prince George, the Pacific Great Eastern will be only 80 miles from Queen's. That railway runs to salt water at Squamish, and these Japanese are being planted right along the railway and along the Cariboo highway, the two routes that lead to Prince George and that area on the north and west.

I agree with the hon. member for Comox-Alberni (Mr. Neill) that this is a national question. Possibly we from British Columbia are largely to blame for the fact that in general the people of Canada do not regard it as a national question, because we have always insisted on looking at it as a purely British Columbia problem. It is a national problem; I know the Minister of Labor (Mr. Mitchell) regards it as a national problem, but I am warning him that the people of British Columbia, those who are dissatisfied with the way the work of handling the Japanese has been carried out, are not today blaming the British Columbia security commission, they are blaming this government, and particularly the Minister of Labor. I am calling that to his attention publicly to make certain that he knows it, although I think he does.

I have nothing further to say except to reiterate that this is a national problem, that however you scatter the Japanese around different parts of British Columbia, you are going to find at least I am very much afraid you are—that wherever they are put in that province within the next 30 days, you are going to find them in a battle area or a potential battle area. Therefore I urge on this government, on the British Columbia security commission and on all the people of Canada who are giving thought to the Japanese question that these Japanese be moved, not only to points in British Columbia away from the actual coastline, but into various parts of Canada wherever they can be taken.

I wish to join heartily with the hon. member for Comox-Alberni in what he said concerning what ought to be the attitude of Canada when we have won the war. We do not see much sign of winning it yet; but when we have won the war, what ought to be the attitude of Canada towards the Japanese now resident in this country? I agree with him wholeheartedly that one of the terms of peace imposed upon our enemies of today should be the taking away from Canada of all the Japanese who are here, and, of course, refusal to permit any more of them to migrate to our shores.

ONLY FIVE ON ISLAND
R. W. Mayhew (Victoria, B.C.): A few weeks ago I received some correspondence from Victoria regarding the presence of Japanese on Vancouver Island. At that time I took the trouble to enquire from the mayor of Victoria and the mayors of other cities and towns in Nainaimo riding, and with the hon. member for Comox-Alberni (Mr. Neill) we found that as far as Vancouver Island is concerned there appear—Lay "appear" advisedly—to be only five Japanese left on Vancouver Island, and that those five are married to white men. That statement has been given some publicity. In itself it is dangerous, because the authorities on Vancouver Island may take it for granted that those are all the Japanese we have. I should be surprised—I should also be delighted—if that were the case, because there is ample opportunity for them to catch themselves away and to be of use when the time comes. I send out that word of warning at the present time.

As far as the handling of the Japanese is concerned it should be taken out of the hands of the security commission. It should never have been in their hands. It should never have been anything but the responsibility of this government to see that that situation was taken care of properly, and of course as humanely as possible. Speaking in this house some time ago I suggested that as far as possible the Japanese should be moved from their present places of abode in units of families, so as to keep their families together as much as possible.

I maintain that it is not a British Columbia problem only; it is a problem of all of Canada. It will never be settled until the other provinces are willing to take their full share and to admit the Japanese. Ten thousand or 15,000 Japanese in the city of Toronto would not be noticed there.

Mr. MacNicol: The hon. member is very kind to Toronto.

Mr. Mayhew: Well, you people in eastern Canada have been very keen to trade with the Japanese; you wished to cultivate their good-will so that you might sell your merchandise in Japan, and while you were doing that we in British Columbia had them as competitors—and they are not bad competitors at that; there are lots worse.

Mr. MacNicol: The scrap-iron went to them from British Columbia.
Mr. Mayhew: I do not interrupt others very often when they are speaking, and I should like to continue. I say it is definitely a Canadian problem. Let me give credit to the Hon. Mitchell Hepburn, he showed the right spirit; he was willing to take some Japanese on his own place to work for him and found them—good workers, and anyone who takes them will find them good workers. Certainly they are loyal to Japan. Would anyone of us who had lived 40 years in Japan be anything but Canadian? Do we expect more of them than we do of ourselves? We must accept that as a straight, hard fact and live up to it. The people of Canada must not say that there is an area into which the Japanese are not to come and another area into which they may come. Must we draw a line and say they can live on this side but not on that? It is absolutely silly. Scatter them through the whole of Canada as widely as possible and we shall not have any trouble. Some hon. members who have sons who may probably be fighting on the western coast of Canada before very long will then realize that it is their own problem, if these Japanese happen to be fifth columnists who are the means of destroying those members' sons while they are fighting the Japanese. That is more than a British Columbia problem; it is a Canadian national problem, and this government should shoulder the total responsibility. It should not be on the shoulders of the Minister of Labor. He has enough to do with other problems. It is something far beyond that. It should be dealt with as something apart from anything else, a separate problem, and dealt with in a proper manner.

Mr. T. J. O'Neill (Kamloops): I am fairly well in agreement with most of the things that have been said this afternoon, and more especially with the hon. member for Comox-Alberni (Mr. Neill) and the hon. member for Victoria, B.C. (Mr. Mayhew). In order to size up this situation properly as it exists, we should go back to last winter. Last January it became quite apparent that the Japanese must be moved out of the protected area of British Columbia, and certain regulations were drawn up. The Japanese were not to have automobiles or trucks or radios or cameras or firearms, and so on; and in addition there was a curfew set up, under which they were supposed to be in their place of domicile each day between sunset and sunrise. Many of us overlook the fact that these regulations applied only to the protected area, but now we find that they are not being lived up to even in that area. A commission was set up, and I did not hear any violent objection to that commission on the part of any hon. member. Personally I was of the opinion that this was the proper way to handle the Japanese. I thought you would have them on the job, and naturally I supposed they would be just as much interested in having these Japanese moved out of that protected area in the shortest possible time as I would be if I were on that commission. Apparently it has not worked out in that way.

HOW TO KILL AN OCTOPUS
From San Francisco Argonaut
Japan is a gigantic octopus with many malignant tentacles extending thousands of miles from Tokyo. No octopus was ever killed by lopping off the ends of its tentacles. It can only be destroyed by striking at its vital heart. That heart is Tokyo and the vulnerable industrial centres Japan.

 Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Rau, 1728 Coronation Avenue, announce the engagement of their only daughter, Kathleen Marie, to Petty Officer George R. MacFarlane, elder son of Capt. and Mrs. G. A. MacFarlane, 145 Island Highway. The wedding to take place in the near future.

Seek Accommodation For Young Women In Uniform

Many women who have a sincere desire to do something for the war effort, but also have responsibilities in the home and cannot leave, could render a valuable service by providing living accommodation for women in uniform, who are required to live out of barracks.

As young women are brought to Victoria for work at Western Air Command, R.C.A.F., Belmont Building, they have found it extremely difficult to find comfortable living quarters within walking distance of work and within their subsistence allowance.

The Y.W.C.A. is endeavoring to locate places to board for the out-of-town girls, explaining to householder that by making these young women comfortable in their homes, they would be assisting in an important defence work.

The "Y" also has suggested to those who are not able to spare living accommodation, that they could be actively doing their part by opening their homes for hospitality when the girls are on leave, or on a 48-hour pass. The girls come from the prairie provinces, and some from farther east. An informal visit and dinner in a home, a book by a fireplace, or relaxation in a sunny garden, can give new life for another period of concentrated work.

The Y.W.C.A. rooms registry office, G 7179, will receive names of householders who would be willing to take in boarders or entertain for an evening, or a day or two, women in the services.

 Blue hydrangea and white gladioli formed the background Friday evening at 8, in Christ Church Cathedral, for the marriage of Kathleen Georgina, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Lefler, R.R. 4, Cordova Bay, and Gunner Richard Lee Hughes, R.C.A., 5th Coast Brigade, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Hughes, 85 Moss Street. Rev. J. R. Fife performed the ceremony and Mr. Bulley played the wedding music.

The bride was given away by her father, and wore a smart dressmaker wool suit of twilight green, with matching hat and tobacco brown accessories. She carried her mother's white prayer book and on her shoulder was a corsage bouquet of mauve orchids. Miss Audrey Wilson was the only attendant, wearing a tailored navy blue suit with an off-the-face hat, accessories in navy blue and a corsage bouquet of pale pink roses. Mr. Eric Hughes, brother of the groom, was groomsmen.

A reception for the immediate families was held at the home of the bride's parents, where Mrs. Lefler received the guests dressed in a navy blue suit with navy accessories, assisted by Mrs. Hughes in a soft blue crepe dress and off-the-face hat to match. Both wore corsage bouquets of pale pink carnations. The supper table was arranged with sweetheart roses and white heather and centred by the wedding cake.

Before the young couple left for a honeymoon to be spent on the mainland, the bride donned a topcoat of matching color over her wedding costume.

DUNSMORE-TIMMINS
 Rev. H. H. Kerley performed the ceremony Saturday evening in the United Church-Manse, Belmont Avenue, which united in marriage Doris, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Timmins, 437 Heather Street, and Mr. John A. D. Dunsmore, 2530 Fernwood Road, only son of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Dunsmore, Cumberland, B.C.

The bride was given away by her father, and wore a floor-length gown of delphinium blue net over taffeta and matching doll hat with a short veil. She carried a colonial bouquet of sweetheart roses, carnations, sweet peas and fern. Miss Winnifred Barnard was bridesmaid in a gown of hyacinth blue triple sheer with a matching blue and pink hat and she carried a colonial bouquet. Mr. Lorne Buchanan, 2811 Prior Street, supported the groom.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where Mrs. Timmins received the guests wearing a navy and white redingote ensemble, with matching accessories, assisted by Mrs. Dunsmore in a gold two-piece frock with matching hat, and brown accessories. Both wore corsage bouquets of carnations and fern.

A three-tier wedding cake centred the lace-covered supper table, which was arranged with pink and white sweet peas and bridal streamers hanging from a large white wedding bell. Mr. Lorne Buchanan proposed the traditional toast after which the bride cut the cake.

A beige crepe dress topped by a blue polo coat, was worn by the bride for the honeymoon to be spent up-island as far as Campbell River. Upon their return the young couple will take up residence at 624 Michigan Street.

Huggan of Caledon, Ont. Attendants were Miss Margaret Coton of London, sister of the bride, and John Plewes of Ottawa. The couple will live in Ottawa.

Hats To Be Fewer, Less Glamorous, Board Decees

OTTAWA (CP)—Women whose favorite cure for the blues is a new hat, will have to find a less glamorous means of making the world bright again.

J. A. Klein, administrator of women's, misses' and children's wear for the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, announced today that processors of felt shapes intended for manufacture into women's felt hats have been ordered to cut their production of stiffened felt hats by one-half in relation to their output in the corresponding period of 1941.

The color range of their products has been restricted to 10 shades. Wool felts will appear in gallant blue, cruiser grey, concord wine, patriot green, turtan, navy, nigger brown, black, scarlet and paddy green.

The Capeline shape has been ruled out for the duration, but manufacturers may sell any hats of the colors and shapes now prohibited which were in stock or in process on the effective date of the order, July 27.

Necessities of war are given as the reason for the order. Shellac, used in the stiffening of felt hats, is used in making shells and in many industrial processes where a waterproof coating is required.

Members of the Legion of Mary, St. Andrew's Cathedral, had the honor of welcoming Miss Mary Duffy of Dublin, Ireland, national organizer, to its recent meeting, when she gave an inspiring talk. Afterwards she addressed a number of auxiliary legionaries, telling them of the work done by the active groups. She urged a great increase in prayer as being the crying need at this crisis in the history of the world and of Christendom. Miss Rose Maguire, president of the St. Andrew's presidium, thanked Miss Duffy on behalf of all present.

Complaints Re Food Prices and Quality Must Be Specific

Generalizations as to alleged rises in prices or deterioration in quality of goods purchased are of no use to the Wartime Prices and Trades Board. Complaints must give definite information, citing specific instances as to where the goods were purchased, quoting the rise in price and explaining the difference in quality. Such information should be sent in writing to the local office, 310 Central Building.

This was one of the points emphasized at the meeting of the women's regional advisory committee of the Wartime Prices and Trades Board, held Monday afternoon, Mrs. Paul Smith presiding. Miss Violet Wilson was appointed radio convenor for the board. Mrs. H. L. Smith will represent the P.E.O. Sisterhood and Mrs. W. E. Rayfuse will act as secretary and press convenor.

Mrs. G. Hurrell, Vancouver, has been appointed secretary of the British Columbia Women's Regional Advisory Board, according to a letter received from Mrs. Byrne Hope Sanders, Ottawa.

Mrs. Sanders also drew attention to the need for specific information when laying complaints, noting that the board had been flooded with generalizations which made it impossible to take action.

SAVED $500,000

A letter was read from Donald Gordon, chairman of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, thanking the Victoria women for their work in connection with the sugar rationing coupons, and he noted that $500,000 had been saved the country by the volunteer help. Mrs. Sanders and Mr. A. R. Food also wrote letters of thanks.

Reports were received from women's groups throughout British Columbia who had worked in transferring the sugar ration cards. Mrs. A. E. Hopkins, president of the Local Council of Women, gave a report of the work done in Victoria in this connection.

Queen Elizabeth Has 42nd Birthday

LONDON (CP Cable)—Queen Elizabeth today is celebrating her 42nd birthday.

The day is being spent quietly with the King and Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose. No official observances are planned and the royal family marked the event only by a luncheon party.

As last year, the Queen insisted that she receive nothing but token gifts until the war is won. Any cheques sent her will be turned over to wartime charities. Floral gifts will be taken to hospitals.

Congratulatory messages began arriving Monday night at Buckingham Palace from throughout the Empire and other countries.

Abbott of Toronto and newly-crowned "Miss Farmerette of 1942." Chosen from among 17 candidates, Pat was crowned farmerette queen at the armories here Saturday night when farm placement officials and district fruit growers gathered to honor the 1,300 girls who serve in government labor camps and on private farms throughout Ontario.

Love May Prove Help To Digestion, Says Diet Expert

By EDITH GAYLORD

NEW YORK (AP)—That beautiful thing called love may offer just what the doctor ordered—a wholesome, balanced diet for people who ordinarily think only in terms of steak and potatoes.

Dr. Jack Nagler, director of food laboratories of the New York Institute of Dietetics, said in an interview Monday that a person in love might even go so far as to order spinach and like it.

"People in love," said Dr. Nagler, "forget their settled habits, even in eating. They give in to changes sooner. In a restaurant they are more likely to order foods they ordinarily don't eat."

Since, said Dr. Nagler, most people eat too much of the wrong thing, falling in love may cause them to eat more proper foods.

If you can't arrange to fall in love, get mad. It's the psychological effect of an emotional upset that counts, says the doctor.

The expert hopes that in an unguarded moment, when you're gazing at those heavenly blue eyes across the table, you'll reach for a carrot instead of a potato and discover that vegetables are tasty items.

Let the sweet in your life be honeyed words and finish your meal with fruits. Take your nectar in the form of milk.

You may need more food if you're in love because your basic energy expenditure will increase. But you need more vitamins and minerals, said Dr. Nagler, and fewer potatoes and gravy. If you don't like vegetables unadulterated, use sauces or condiments as taste-teasers.

There's a patriotic element to this too. Some foods, such as sugar, coffee, bananas, already are rationed. Perhaps others will be. But there is an abundance of the vegetables and fruits in which most persons' diets are deficient. Get the proper eating habits and make use of vast supplies of home-grown agricultural products.

As completely adequate substitutes for meat, a shortage of which threatens in some areas, Dr. Nagler suggests cheese or fish. For instance, codfish, crab, salmon and herring equal the food value of beef.

"It is unlikely that anyone in this country ever will starve to death because of the war," Dr. Nagler said. "We have an abundance of proper foods for adequate diets."

Mrs. Churchill Is Grateful to Canada

LONDON (CP)—Admiration and gratitude for the part Canadians are playing in aiding troops in training while also contributing to the support of British service women was expressed Monday night by Mrs. Winston Churchill, wife of the Prime Minister.

Mrs. Churchill, in a message to Mrs. Richard Grenfell who had presented an account of her mission to Canada on behalf of Mrs. Churchill's Y.W.C.A. fund for British service women, wrote:

"I want to record by admiration and gratitude to Canadians who, faced with providing comforts and amenities for troops in training, are also contributing to the needs of British service women."

Mrs. Grenfell's report said she had been impressed by the live civic conscience of Canadian residents toward their young people, shown by the energy put into their war effort and by their patience and courage, even though long separated from relatives overseas.

Canadians contributed $54,000 and promised $50,000 additional in the current year.

"There never was a sympathy more generously accorded than that shown by Canadians to British citizens," the report said.

What Canada must demand of You...and why

CANADIANS realize this to be a war for survival that must be won the hard way. It should be as unthinkable for those at home to evade any part of what Canada needs of them, as for our fighting men to desert in face of the enemy. If you have doubt as to what your country needs of you in these critical times, the following facts should dispel it.

Canada must now spend about five times as much per year on war effort as at the peak of the war of 1914-18. This huge effort will absorb in the financial year of 1942-3 nearly 12 million dollars a day—over half the Nation's total income!

Canada must raise this money from her people. She must spread the burden over each according to his or her means. It is as critical a problem as any in history. How does it affect you?

Voluntary Savings MUST Grow

Necessarily severe taxes will provide just over six million dollars a day—only half the money needed! Because part of this money is returnable, with interest, after the war, every taxpayer is making a minimum wartime saving. Many people will have exemptions in the form of insurance premiums, payments on mortgages, pension funds, etc., offsetting the compulsory savings requirements. Whatever the case, compulsory savings cannot replace voluntary effort! The six million dollars a day still needed must be lent by people like you!

This means severe economy in which spending must be cut to bare necessities, with all spare dollars put into War Savings Stamps, Certificates and Bonds. The Government regulation of prices means that you are spared loss through inflated living costs and have more savings to lend. To lend is no longer a matter of sentiment or emotion, but of necessity.

Nevertheless, the harsh dictates of war can be used to help your future. Money spent now can bring you little benefit...a backlog of savings in peace will bring much. Canada is depending on you. Look up and take your rightful place!

By PETE SALLAWAY

WE HAD just settled comfortably behind the desk early Monday morning when the telephone cut loose with a blast and a worried voice drifted over the wire: "This is Stan Miles and I want to give you the real dope on the decision in that wrestling bout Saturday between Chief Thunderbird and George Kitzmiller. Some of the fans seem to think I was acting a 'home-towner' by giving the nod to the Victoria Indian."

So we talked to Miles for quite a few minutes and this is his story. It appears that Thunderbird and Kitzmiller both expressed the wish to wrestle under the new Australian rules. These regulations permit a referee to award a bout by a decision and also will not allow a grappler to strike or attempt to hit a referee, such action costing the culprit a fall or even a match.

According to Miles, Chief Thunderbird had a double Indian deathlock on Kitzmiller in that last round. "They could have stayed on the canvas until Christmas and Kitzmiller would never have broken the hold," Miles declared. "For that reason, I figured the only thing was to break the boys apart and naturally had to award the decision to Thunderbird as he was the one with the hold."

Alderman Billy Davies, who promoted Saturday's show, is sold on wrestling. The former boxing impresario declared after his first venture that the grapplers give the fans more for their money than the boxers. "With the wrestlers you get plenty of action and those boys certainly take chances," he told us.

From now on the Saturday racing programs at Hastings Park will be run off in the afternoon with the first post called for 2.30. Instead of three hours later. We are not surprised after what happened last Saturday. When the eighth and final event was over we doubt if the patrons could read the numbers on the prices board. Continuance of the late post on eight-race days would have forced the officials to put headlights on the hurdlers. They went to the post Saturday at 9. And it wasn't twilight.

Castilloux Through?

By SCOTT YOUNG
TORONTO (CP)—Dave Castilloux and his manager, Raoul Godbout, have managed to confuse the issue to an alarming degree within the last few days. It started when Castilloux said after his marriage in Montreal last Saturday that he was through with boxing. It struck at note of utter nonsense Monday when Godbout said in Montreal that Castilloux's statement was not to be considered official.

What can anyone make of that, except that Castilloux wants to retire and Godbout, whose interest in the affair hardly can be misconstrued, wants him to keep on fighting.

Castilloux is in the R.C.A.F. He's married. He wants to quit fighting, and why not? He was a good fighter, but never hit the top. It is doubtful if even Godbout can see anything in the future greater than Castilloux already has attained.

Godbout says Castilloux, who holds the Canadian lightweight and welterweight crowns, will defend his welter title against Al Lust of Calgary in September. Lust earned a shot at the title by beating Maxie Berger. But if Castilloux wants to retire, Lust probably will get the championship—by award or otherwise.

HANSON ON WED

Eddie (Winnipeg Free Press) Armstrong reports that Cpl. Fritz Hanson will be married in Vancouver within the next few days. The girl is Maxine Newton of Winnipeg. Hanson is with the Winnipeg light infantry somewhere in British Columbia. Clayton (St. Catharines Standard) Browne comes up with an athletic enlistment record to end them all. The St. Catharines Royals

Alex Haller finally broke Emil Sporri's strangle hold on the riding honors at Hastings Park. Since the bangtails started galloping around the bull ring, the veteran Sporri has been showing a clean pair of heels to the other riders. But Haller was the leading pilot for the seven-day meeting just closed and it may be evidence the other boys are getting used to going around in tight circles.

Bobby Summers, pint-sized little fellow, who played some smart junior hockey at the Willows Arena last winter, is really riding well these days at Hastings. When the Whittier Park Stock Farm horses, Western Prince and Hoops My Dear, topped their races last Friday Summers played a leading role.

Here is what Johnny Park had to say about Summers' riding in the Vancouver Province:

"But while the colt was strutting his stuff it remained for young Bobby Summers, the Victoria riding sensation, apprentice to 'Doc' Derbyshire, to really amaze the crowd with his daredevil effort on Speers' Hoops My Dear.

"The filly, on the last reading on the approximate odds board, was one of the shortest priced favorites of the meeting but she couldn't find clear running room at any stage during the first circle of the oval. Then the circuit's leading apprentice noticed a 'knot-hole' between two horses. Hoops My Dear went in and came out without interference. Then Summers was down on the rail again and drove through a similar opening to reach contention turning off the back stretch.

"The mere fact that he crossed the wire a handy winner does not detract from his saddle effort. Summers actually won the race when he went through those two narrow ports.

"When Duke Campbell and Jim Speers saw Bobby at the fight last night, they shouted in unison: 'Nice going, Bobby, a million-dollar ride!' 'Thanks for the compliment,' said Bobby, 'but I was just a fool for luck, the filly carried me through!'

Technical Knockout For Hank Armstrong

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Henry Armstrong, former three-champion of boxing's lighter weights, scored a seven-round technical knockout Sunday night over Aldo Spoldi of New York for his fourth victory in five fights of an attempted comeback.

The Los Angeles Negro won every round by a comfortable margin and made a punching bag of Spoldi, whose only reward was the big hand he received for his gameness from a crowd which filled the 10,000-seat civic auditorium to capacity. The fight had been scheduled for 10 rounds.

Armstrong weighed 143½ pounds; Spoldi, 137.

Hogan Still Tops

ST. PAUL (AP)—The leading 20 money winners announced Monday by Fred Corcoran, P.G.A. tournament manager, at the finish of the $5,000 St. Paul golf open: Ben Hogan, $12,143; Byron Nelson, $9,601; Sam Snead, $8,078; Lawson Little, $6,647; Lloyd Mangrum, $6,623; Chick Harbert, $6,692; Dutch Harrison, $4,100; Chandler Harper, $3,782; Sam Byrd, $3,768; Jimmy Thomson, $3,410.

Caddies Will Wear Numbers

TORONTO (CP)—Note to Canadian open entrants: You can relax, men. The Royal Canadian Golf Association won't ask anyone but caddies to wear numbers.

B. L. Anderson, secretary of the R.C.G.A., had an emphatic answer when queried about the numbers game that started such big winds during the Tam o'Shanter tournament in Chicago last week.

"The caddies will wear numbers on their backs," he said. "In that way, the gallery will be able to identify golfers just as easily as if the golfers wore the numbers."

The men who cut loose with the loudest beefs when Tam o'Shanter officials tried to pin numbers on their backs were Tommy Armour and Joe Kirkwood. Both refused, and quit. Kirkwood is entered in the Canadian open, and is expected to arrive with other leading United States professionals today.

The 72-hole event will be played at the Mississauga Club, about 12 miles west of Toronto, Aug. 6 to 8. Entries have been slow coming in for the $3,600 chase (first prize: $1,000 and the Seagram Gold Cup), but officials think the drought will end within the next 24 hours.

NAME PLAYERS EXPECTED

Sammy Snead, winner in 1940 and 1941, won't be around. His duties with the United States navy keep him elsewhere. But Ben Hogan, leading money-winner among the pro golfers this season, is considered an almost certain starter, with such other American luminaries as Craig Wood, Jimmy Thomson, Tony Manero, Horton Smith, Lloyd Mangrum, Phil Turnesa, Gene Sarazen, Harry Cooper, Jimmy Demaret, Jug McSpaden and Paul Runyan. Byron Nelson is not expected.

Gordon Brydson is among the most-favored of the Canadian professionals. Mississauga is his home course and his 6,543-yard, par 72 layout is built for straight hitters.

Bob Gray of Toronto Scarborough, Stan Leonard of Vancouver and Stan Horne of Montreal probably will provide the rest of the strong Canadian competition.

Open Softball Final

With the senior A men's softball title at stake, Navy and Barons will open a five-game series at the Athletic Park tonight, starting at 6.45. In view of their great season record the sailors will be favorites to cop the honors.

Playing in the semifinals of the city championship series Palm Dairies defeated the Hudson's Bay 8 to 4 Monday night. Joe Bryant, hurled smart ball for the winners, striking out 15.

In a women's league match New Method Laundry defeated the Hudson's Bay 20 to 13.

NORVANS WIN BOXLA

VANCOUVER (CP)—Norvans defeated New Salmonbellies 7 to 6 in an overtime Intercity Box Lacrosse League game here Monday night.

Salmonbellies led to the last quarter when Norvans tied the score and Bill Dickenson scored the winning goal, only counter of the overtime session. Bill Wilkes and Ed Downie of Salmonbellies both left the game, Wilkes with a sprained ankle and Downie with a back injury.

ZALE VS. ABRAMS

NEW YORK (AP)—Promoter Mike Jacobs Monday announced a 10-round over-the-weight fight in Chicago the week of Sept. 14 between Tony Zale, middleweight champion, and Georgia Abrams.

Both Zale and Abrams are chief specialists in the navy. Zale is stationed at Great Lakes and Abrams at Jacksonville, Fla.

Navy Shares Ball Lead

Defeats Eagles 6-5

Climaxing a great uphill fight since the start of the ball season, Navy finally caught up with the V.M.D. Monday night and the two clubs are tied for first place. Sailors turned back the Eagles 6 to 5 to close the gap between themselves and the shipyarders who have topped the circuit since the campaign got under way.

It was the perfect setting for Wednesday night's clash between the V.M.D. and Navy. To the winner will go first place and at this late stage that may mean for the remainder of the schedule. Monday night's triumph marked the sixth straight win for the bluejackets.

Eagles trotted out a couple of new players, Gll Bruce and Tommy Garner from up-land, in a desperate attempt to stay in

New York Ball Fans Mad

Dodgers Whip Giants

The dimout on the east coast blacked out the ninth inning of a bitter battle between the Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Giants Monday night, leaving 57,305 spectators in confusion, and made continuance of the twilight form of baseball in New York a matter of doubt.

About all the fans were sure of as they scrambled out of the Polo Grounds was that the National League champions had won the ball game, 7 to 4, with Dixie Walker belting a three-run homer in the third inning and Dolph Camilli hitting the jack-pot in the seventh inning with a clout against the rightfield roof while the bases were loaded.

These two tremendous blows gave Whitlow Wyatt his 13th victory against three defeats and spoiled Van Lingle Mungo's outing against his former team-mates.

Trailing by three runs the Giants came to bat in the last half of the ninth and Bill Werber singled on the first pitch, then Mel Ott walked. The crowd was in an uproar sensing that Wyatt was weakening, and that Babe Young, who had hit a homer earlier, was next at bat, to be followed by Willard Marshall and Buster Maynard, a couple of sluggers.

REAL CONFUSION

However, umpire George Magerkurth at this point signalled the game was over because of the dimout rules, which prohibit outdoor floodlights in the New York area for more than one hour after sundown.

To prevent stalling, no one except the umpires knew exactly when the game would be halted and even the players were confused by the sudden stoppage. The Brooklyn team remained in the field for several minutes while the big crowd that had turned out for the benefit of the army emergency relief fund boomed long and loud.

The same teams were scheduled for another part daylight part floodlight game at the Polo Grounds tonight and the same thing in Brooklyn Wednesday night.

But president Horace Stoneham of the Giants said that there would never be another twilight game in his ball park after tonight and it was considered likely that provision would be made for Brooklyn games to prevent a recurrence of the trouble there.

The Giant-Dodger contest was the only major league game Wednesday, an open date which most of the clubs filled with exhibitions, including one in which the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Philadelphia Athletics, 5 to 2, at Cooperstown, baseball's birthplace.

Boxla Teams Play Tonight

Now that the steam has cleared and the five teams in the Greater Victoria Box Lacrosse Association have evaporated to three, Victoria will tonight get a preview of what this month's playoffs will look like.

For at the Sports Centre this evening Oaklands, who now contain the remains of Jokers, and Bays-Douglas-Tire, the daddy of local amalgamations, will battle it out and pretty well decide who is going to supply the better opposition for United Services when the playoffs drift around.

Both teams are now as strong as they can possibly be. In top place with United Services, Bays-Douglas-Tire will take undisputed first place if they beat Oaklands.

Game time is 8.30. The curtain raiser will be between V.M.D. and Fletcher's Men's Shop at 7.

Senior line-ups follow:

Oaklands—Taylor, Cunningham, Turnquist, Michellin, Rhoads, Druce, Popham, Calverly, Ranson, McCaghey, Lea, Williams, Penketh and Prior.
Bays-Douglas-Tire—Long, McKeachie, McFadden, Ferguson, Cullin, Ball, Anderson, Heatherington, Stevens, Travis, Bryant, Ovcharick and Robbins.

Harbert Shoots Sensational 66

ST. PAUL (AP)—While his wife rode behind him in an army jeep and tossed him smiles after every shot, young Chick Harbert easily won the St. Paul open golf championship Monday, for love, money, and fame.

So inspired was the 27-year-old Battle Creek, Mich., pro that he swaggared around the hilly Keller public course in 66, six strokes under par and the lowest round of the tournament.

His opponent, lean Dutch Harrison of Harrisburg, Pa., played tag with the traps and rough most of the day to take a 75. Harbert thus won the playoff by a nine-stroke margin, one of the largest in any tournament playoff sponsored by the P.G.A.

For his victory, Harbert the 'lark' (he whistles while he puts) pocketed $1,000.

In five rounds of golf during his trail to the title, Harbert fashioned scores of 68-73-68-71-66—346, 14 strokes under Keller's 36-36-72 par.

Top Locals Beaten in Singles

Opening day of the 15th annual tournament of the Greater Victoria Lawn Bowling Association Monday was marked by several upsets.

In the women's singles played at the Canadian Pacific greens Mrs. A. Mowat, Burnside, last year's champion, went down to defeat at the hands of Miss McCready, North Vancouver, 15 to 12. Mrs. Mowat was leading 12 to 2 when her opponent secured the jack and playing short ends ran out the winner by three shots.

Mrs. Kyle, Victoria, came through to an unexpected victory over Mrs. Sluggitt, C.P., Vancouver, 15 to 13. Another strong Victoria contender passed from the running with the defeat of Mrs. Stewart, Burnside, by Mrs. Hunter, North Vancouver, by a single shot, 15 to 14.

Big upset in the men's singles was the defeat of Alf Marconini, Victoria club veteran, by S. Keenlyside, Terminal, 15 to 11. All the other games were about an even break between locals and visitors.

In the men's rinks F. W. Davey, C.P., topped section one with eight points; H. Holmes, Burnside, headed section 2 with seven points; R. Williams, North Vancouver, D. Fyvie, C.P., and S. Barr, also C.P., tied for lead in section 3, and W. Rickson, Courtenay, was the leader in section 4.

At the opening ceremony Monday morning at the Victoria greens at Beacon Hill, President H. A. Beckwith extended a welcome to the visitors. Fred Sellers, president of the Victoria Club, threw the first jack and Beckwith the first bowl.

Dorothy Dix:

Should Ambitious Woman Marry Easy-going Man?

Dear Miss Dix—I am the father of a lovely daughter of 22 who will soon graduate from a professional school in which she has been well prepared to follow the career of her choice. She is engaged to a fine boy who has lots of good in him. In fact, he worked his way through college and is now in the army. But evidently my daughter has doubts about the wisdom of marrying him. So she writes me, asking my advice on the subject and I pass the buck on to you. She says:

"Dad, do you think a girl who wants to get things done at once and who is intensely ambitious should marry a boy who is ambitious only to a small degree and believes in taking life as it comes, wanting a peaceful, average existence rather than getting to the top? Is it not true that the ambitious girl marrying a take-it-easy man might become one of those detestable, horrible, domineering or nagging wives?"

What do you think of my daughter's problem?

A FATHER.

Answer: I think such a marriage would almost certainly come to grief because the husband and wife would have diametrically opposite viewpoints on what mattered in life and what they wanted out of life. There is an old story that tells of a husband and wife who, when they were first married, sat down to discuss their future plans together.

The man said: "When I have made $100,000 I will have enough and I will retire from business, and we will enjoy life." The woman said: "Oh, don't wait until you get $100,000. Retire when you have made enough for us to be comfortable on." The man made $100,000 and he wanted to retire, but his wife wanted still more. He made $200,000 and eventually $1,000,000, but still he had not made enough to make her comfortable.

That is the way with an ambitious woman. She is never satisfied. She never reaches her goal. And she has no patience with a husband who isn't willing to sacrifice everything to get on in the world. No one is such a penny-pincher as the woman who is determined to lay up a fortune. An ambitious wife is not a restful companion. On the contrary, she is a goad in the side of her husband, and there are very few who can take it, and like it.

HER AMBITION DROVE HIM AWAY

I have in mind a couple of youngsters I knew well. They were much in love when they married. The man was a gifted writer and his wife was inordinately ambitious and eager for him to succeed. So as soon as he began to be successful she made herself a task-mistress. She drove him to his desk every morning, whether he was in the mood for writing or not, and kept him imprisoned until he turned out what she thought was an adequate amount of copy. Always she hounded him to do more and more and make more and more money, until finally he could stand it no longer and he left her for an easy-going woman who would play with him and let him enjoy some of the fruits of his labor.

I think it doubtful whether an ambitious woman ever loves any man as well as she does her ambition, so I think your daughter would make a great mistake to marry a man whose idea of a successful life is just to be happy.

IS TOO GLAMOROUS

Dear Miss Dix—I am a girl, 17 years old, and my best friend is the same age. We are together constantly and I am very fond of her, but there is just one trouble. If we meet boys, I never get anywhere because she is so beautiful and has such a wonderful personality that the boys fall for her immediately. So what am I to do?

I am not beautiful and, although I try to be pleasant and a lot of fun, I don't have a chance. I am not jealous, because I realize it is not her fault that the boys like her, but I am getting tired of just having her leftovers. Please tell me what I can do.

JANE.

Answer: Well, Jane, there are two ways of looking at your situation. One is that on the principle that half a loaf is better than no bread at all, any kind of a date is better than to sit at home and suck your thumb. Many girls who lack the come-hither look deliberately choose as their running mates girls who have it and who act as their stalking horses. The glamour girl draws the boys and the unglamourous one gets in on the killing, because when Beautiful Susie is asked to go places Plain Susie can't be left out of the party.

That seems to be your case and probably you will be foolish to break away from your beautiful friend, for among the many boys she has in her trail there will be someone who will find how sweet and amiable and pleasant you are, and that you make a nice consolation prize. On the other hand, you can break away from your attractive friend and go only with girls who are no better-looking and have no more personality than you have. That avoids an invidious comparison, but it has its disadvantages because nothing is more dangerous to a girl's chances with boys than to see side-scooped with a bunch of girls who always go together and never have any masculine attention. It takes more courage than the average lad has to try to horn into such a feminine organization.

MANY WAR BRIDES ARE MERCENARY

Dear Miss Dix—The reason so many girls are anxious to marry boys who are just going into the army is because they are looking forward to that insurance money in case their darlings don't come back, or the alimony they can collect if they don't like them when they get home. My girl friend tried to inveigle me into marrying her before going into the service, so I gave her the air for good, and I mean for good. I have no use for racketeers, and that is just what women are. Do you think that men will ever get wise to them? I don't.

DRAFTEE.

Answer: I am afraid not, son. Men have been knowing women and their wiles ever since the dawn of creation and they don't seem to have learned a thing about them.

No doubt there are plenty of girls who are rushing into war marriages with a weather eye on the possible profits they may get out of them, but many others are carried away by war hysteria and the romance of having their pictures taken as they walk out of church under an arch of swords. And many others because they are honestly in love with the boys and believe that a marriage ceremony will bind them more securely than an engagement ring.

Farmer Left Friend Fourth of Call

Six hundred and forty-nine years ago, a man died in England. He was not a famous man. He is described as having been simply "a small farmer." Probably no one had heard of him except those who lived within a few miles of his farm.

Yet the farmer's name has come down to the present time for the reason that he left a will. He had a lawyer write down on paper the things he wanted to have done with his worldly goods. Many wills from the past have been saved, but only a few cases are known where the will of a person with such small property has been kept through the centuries.

A SMALL FARMER OF THE 13TH CENTURY

The small farmer was Reginald Labbe, and he died near the end of the 13th century. The list of his goods does not include any cash money.

The things he left were livestock, grain and a few odds and ends. By studying the list we gain an idea of how little the "small farmers" of those times could count as their own. Since Labbe went to the trouble and expense of making a will, he probably was much better off than most of the "serfs" who worked on the lands which belonged to their lords.

Here, in short, is the list of what he left:

Three hens.
Two sheep and three lambs.
A cow and a calf.
Eight bushels of barley.
Twelve bushels of fodder.
A bushel and a half of wheat.
Two sheeps, a bolster and a rug.
A brass dish and a tripod for cooking.

A jacket, a tunic and a hood.
Half a penny's worth of salt.
The total value of all his goods was given as 33 shillings and eight pence. In our money today that would be about eight dollars. In those days, however, money would buy more than it does today. The cow, for example, was valued at a sum equal to one dollar—and we are not able to buy even the oldest, most worn-out cow for that amount now!

The cow was left to the widow, Ida Labbe, and it seems to be all she got. One of the sheep was left to "the high altar of Newton," and the other sheep went to another church.

The other things on the list seem to have been sold to pay various items.

A friend of the farmer received a one-fourth interest in the calf! One penny was paid to the gravedigger, and two pence went for the cost of tolling the church bell after the farmer died.

The career of A. L. Peter Stursberg, former Times reporter and later a member of staff of radio station CBR, Vancouver, is dealt with in the weekly paper put out by that station which states he will leave shortly to join the services.

"Born in China, educated in England, he looks for adventure in everything," the article says. "He crossed the Atlantic by contracting to wet-nurse 850 head of cattle from the St. Lawrence to the Mersey, and he tells of the time he traveled on a third class ticket and received service and entertainment in preference even to first class travelers."

"His newspaper career included positions in the Old Country and Vancouver, besides the one he filled at the Victoria Times. "In radio he rose to the position of vice-president in charge of the B.C. Region's newsroom at Vancouver."

Nail Shortage Halts Building Of 200 Houses

Work on between 100 and 200 houses in Victoria was at a standstill today as contractors reported not a nail or a sheet of galvanized iron could be bought from city stores.

Unless the nail and galvanized iron shortage is relieved these civilian houses, which include an unknown number of houses being built under the National Housing Appropriations, will never be completed, H. R. Brown, president of the Victoria Contractors' Association, said today.

The association in the meantime is proceeding with a survey of houses under construction in Victoria so they may make known specific needs of building materials to the Minister of Munitions and Supply.

Mayor Andrew McGavin, who Saturday wired the steel controller to tell him of the acute shortage, Monday received a reply. The controller said the shortage of steel materials was acute and asked more specific information regarding Victoria's needs.

JUST NAILS, IRON

Contractors said they had plenty of lumber and plumbing materials and although they have had insufficient labor for months now, the nail and galvanized iron shortage was the most acute at the moment.

In the average house less than 500 pounds of nails and eight sheets of galvanized iron are used. The cost of this material represents less than $40 in houses valued at $5,000 or less, contractors said.

Builders said it was too bad work should be stopped by materials which represented less than 1 per cent of the total cost of the houses.

Contractors think the most satisfactory solution for their problem would be raising civilian housing on the priority list. The secretary of the advisory board of the controller of construction at Vancouver informed contractors here some time ago that housing came next to shipbuilding in setting priorities.

ONLY FOR WAR JOBS

Further complicating of the nail situation has been the request of the steel controller for manufacturers to prove that all nails they were making are being used in war projects. This would imply that nails are no longer available for civilian uses.

Retailers have also been requested by the steel controller to get from their customers an order for the nails which will be used during the next two months.

The children's softball game will be played at the Willows Park, Beach Drive, between Oak Bay and Central Park teams at 7.15 tonight.

The constables said they went to the Two Jacks poolroom at 9.25 Monday night in response to a call and found that Reid and Strong had been asked by the management to leave the premises.

Firemen to Practice With A.R.P. Wednesday

As part of the city-wide A.R.P. practice to be carried out in Victoria Wednesday night, city firemen will show how fires could be extinguished should water mains be broken by bombs.

Firemen will pump water more than 2,000 feet from the sea, near the Island Tug and Barge wharf at the foot of Humboldt Street, along the Causeway to in front of the Parliament Buildings. Two pumps will be used.

If weather conditions are favorable, firemen will extinguish a fire which will be lit behind the Crystal Garden with water pumped with small forestry pumps from the swimming pool.

Esquimalt

Complain of Car And Bus Service

Reeve Alex Lockley and Councillor Fred Eaton were authorized by the Esquimalt Council Monday to interview the B.C. Electric in an attempt to obtain more adequate transportation for Esquimalt.

The subject was broached by Councillor Eaton, who said that the men of the services and the shipyard workers were getting fine service from the special buses and streetcars that ran at the peak hours, but that the people of Esquimalt were getting nothing.

"We should have the fastest service of any line," he said. "Oak Bay is on a faster service than we are, yet the streetcars there are not carrying nearly the same number of passengers."

"You can stand on a downtown street corner," he added, "and see streetcars on a five and seven-minute service to Oak Bay carrying only three passengers."

Councillor Thomas Hadfield said people up the line were often passed up because the cars were loaded with servicemen and war workers by the time they reached Admirals Road.

Municipal Clerk H. G. Pullen was instructed to secure an appointment with B.C. Electric officials for Reeve Lockley and Councillor Eaton.

INSURE A.R.P. WORKERS

The council unanimously sanctioned the purchase of insurance to cover 50 essential Esquimalt A.R.P. workers, chiefly auxiliary firemen and demolition squad workers. Coverage will be $3,000 for each of a minimum of 50 men at a total cost of $240 a year. The insurance provides for the payment of $3,000 in case of death or complete disability, $25 per week up to 52 continuous weeks in the case of temporary disability and up to $500 per man for medical and hospital expenses.

The council acted quickly when Reeve Lockley said the men to be covered would resign if insurance were not instituted.

A request from Commodore W. J. R. Beech, R.C.N., that Admirals Road in the vicinity of the Naval Barracks be designated as a 15-mile per hour area was referred to the chief of police, who will make a report to the council at the next meeting.

A committee from the council and works department will interview Capt. F. G. Hart, R.C.N., to discuss his request to use municipal property near the Naval Barracks for the erection of air raid shelters to be used by the men of the barracks in case of air raid.

The question of employment of an extra fireman, the hiring of one being sanctioned at the last meeting, was brought up by Reeve Alex Lockley, who asked that the matter be tabled until the next meeting in order that further information might be secured.

The reeve said he was opposed to the employment of another fireman, stating that Esquimalt was now better protected than it had ever been with the addition of a new man to the police force, and that with the Department of National Defence having taken over so much municipal territory, Esquimalt's responsibilities had decreased.

Solarium Children See Shrine Circus

Today was circus day for the children of the Queen Alexandra Solarium.

At 2 this afternoon the Polack Bros. Shrine Circus and Thrill Show staged a special performance for the kiddies, who saw the show, many of them from their bedsides. Through the courtesy of the Vancouver Island Coach Lines, the acts were transported to the Solarium. These included Senor Carrean, fancy roping; Patrick and his roller skates; the Great Rogers, juggler; Miss Mona, trained elephant, and other attractions.

The circus will be open to Victoria in the Willows Sports Centre from Wednesday to Saturday. Seats are now on sale at Terry's Drug Store, Fort Street.

Beer to Go Up 10 Cents a Dozen

Draught beer prices in British Columbia is due for a $2.50 a barrel increase. New government tax will amount to $2.60, but it is believed the Wartime Prices and Trade Board will set the figure at $2.50.

Bottled beer will go up 10 cents a dozen.

Increase will not be announced in Ottawa until existing stocks of beer brewed before the new tax became effective are exhausted.

Provincial liquor control boards have no jurisdiction in the price increases.

Tea Rationing Cuts Fine Old Tradition

Tea drinking, a tradition in the Parliament Buildings, is going to stop.

For the first time since early colonial days there will be no brewing of tea there each afternoon at 4. Tea rationing is responsible.

Offices have cupboards where are stored tea, sugar and cream. Water is boiled on an electric plate. Now, alas, cups are being washed for the last time and placed away "for the duration."

Some offices have half a pound or so left, but when that is gone tea drinking will stop, as it will in every other office in town.

Lots of good old tea-drinking habits are going by the board. For instance, many persons still cling to the Old Country habit of a cup of tea in bed before they arise in the mornings. They will either give up that cup or one later in the day. It's a terrible choice for many people to have to make.

Col. D. Martyn Returns to Duty

COL. D. B. MARTYN, D.S.O., M.C., has returned to active army duty as general staff officer No. 2, Pacific Command, with the rank of lieutenant-colonel.

One of British Columbia's best-known soldiers, Col. Martyn was appointed commissioner when the provincial government formed its industrial department, but retained his military connections, assisting in the reorganization of the 16th Canadian Scottish here, later being appointed to command of the unit with the rank of lieutenant-colonel.

In charge of an internment camp at Nanaimo for a time at the beginning of the first Great War, Col. Martyn went overseas with the 47th Battalion, subsequently transferring first to the 44th New Brunswick Battalion and then to the 16th Canadian Scottish, with whom he returned to Canada.

A native of Ontario, Col. Martyn lived the greater part of his life in British Columbia. For the last six years he has been Seattle manager for an insurance firm.

Nanaimo Urges Grove Preservation

NANAIMO—The following telegram has been sent to C. D. Orchard, chief forester, at Victoria:

"We are advised you are preventing Cathedral Grove from being conserved for public benefit. Strongly urge preservation. Its destruction would be a calamity to public."

The telegram was signed by Mayor V. B. Harrison of Nanaimo, Howard McCarthy, Hugh Wilson, Pete Maffeo, Joseph Krogseth, George Darling and Earl Westwood.

According to the report of Dr. Richard Felton, medical health officer, made to the mayor and City Council today, 125 children were examined by the child welfare department of Victoria during July and four visits were made to the city jail. No patients were attended at the city health office and no patients were examined at their homes during the month.

Says City A.R.P. Good As Any in B.C.

Capt. D. J. Proudfoot, deputy civilian protection officer, who returned to Victoria Saturday after attending the 12-day course in A.R.P. at the University of B.C., said, Monday, Victoria's A.R.P. organization was as good as the best on the mainland, or any other part of the province, so far as he could see.

"I found the Victoria men to be up to standard," he said, "if not above average. Our own organization in Victoria has all major principles covered. I can bring back no suggestions for the improvement of our organization, except, in my opinion, that our fire and police auxiliary services should be greatly augmented."

Capt. Proudfoot said a moving picture had been made of a control scheme he devised, on principles worked out for Victoria.

"A large number of the students will be present during our city-wide test, Wednesday, in order to see our scheme in operation," he said. "I might also say our people are more alive to their responsibilities than those on the mainland, and the service we receive from the public is as good, if not better, than that received in most B.C. centres."

Those who enrolled in the course from here were Capt. Proudfoot, G. A. A. Hedden, Percy B. Scourrah, Frank M. Shandley, George Stuart and H. V. Guest, Victoria; John Jewell and J. G. Worth, Oak Bay; K. R. Genn and C. D. Hamilton, Saanich; Councillor A. H. Dobson, Esquimalt.

Tourist Travel Well Maintained

Contrary to a general impression, there is still a brisk influx of travel from the United States to British Columbia, according to figures released today by the B.C. Government Travel Bureau.

In June, 5,048 automobiles entered B.C. from the U.S. on touring permits.

"In June, 1941, while travel from the United States was still unrestricted," E. G. Rowebottom, Deputy Minister of Trade and Industry said today, "9,414 automobiles came in through border ports. That they are still arriving in such numbers, in spite of the drastic restrictions which now apply, is very gratifying. Certainly, it goes to confirm the views expressed by Hon. Herbert Anscomb, Minister of Trade and Industry, last February that the urge to travel is always present, and that vacation travel would continue to be an important factor."

"Naturally, wartime restrictions have affected the volume, but it is still so substantial as to be distinctly a factor in our economic situation."

Reports from island and coastal resorts generally indicate that accommodation is at a premium and reports from the interior show that the volume there is still encouraging, Mr. Rowebottom said.

Explains Methods Of Finding Stars

"The Stars in the Heavens," by Dr. A. McKellar, was the first address delivered to the Victoria Astronomical Society this season in the Victoria College Monday night.

Dr. McKellar of the Dominion Observatory, dealt largely with the definition of the position of stars, and explained that finding stars in the skies was similar to finding a certain spot on the earth. The different systems of co-ordination were explained, or how the astronomer uses imaginary lines in the heavens to find a body. One system, it was said, was to use the horizon as a starting point, and from there determine the location of any known star.

Another "finding" system was described as the use of the celestial equator. This system involves the imaginary extension of the earth's equator into the skies. Using this as a start, the stars can be found. This latter method was said to be the most popular with astronomers.

From a general outline of the stars and constellations, Dr. McKellar explained how navigators took advantage of the stars in finding their way on the high seas. With his talk he showed how anyone could easily find his latitude by the observation of the pole star.

Following the talk, Dr. K. O. Wright conducted an open-air star observation, and pointed out some of the more significant groups, and constellations. A question period concluded the evening.

Miss M. Oliphant, secretary, reported that the membership for the first session of the season was heavy, and that many more were expected for future meetings. Dr. R. M. Petrie was in the chair.

Next meeting will be held Aug. 10 at the same place, at 8.30. Dr. K. O. Wright will be the speaker.

A.R.P. ACTIVITIES

VETERANS' GUARD CALLS FOR 2,500

Veterans Guard is calling more old comrades back to the colors, Col. H. R. Alley, officer administering the Veterans Guard of Canada reveals. He says 2,500 ex-servicemen who are not older than 50 years of age are needed at once.

"The Veterans Guard of Canada has taken over the 'dull jobs' of the Canadian army," said Col. Alley. "Not only in Canada, but in Britain and in various parts of the Empire the Veterans Guard of Canada is doing the jobs that call for method, doggedness and discipline. Three new units of the guard have already gone overseas."

"There is nothing spectacular about it. There is nothing heroic about it, unless one considers that scrapping everything that a man has built up in 25 years to do a necessary job which is not spectacular, is heroic."

"The Veterans Guard of Canada has been entrusted with the protection of isolated stations on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, of certain other vitally important 'vulnerable points,' and with the trying and very thankless task of guarding prisoners of war. They are holding the ramparts of Canada."

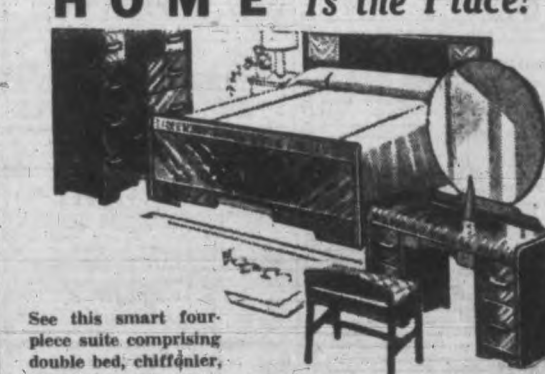

"All these duties have to be done by someone. If it were not for the Veterans Guard of Canada young soldiers would have to be withdrawn from the divisions to do them. At various times when young soldiers have done some of them, the monotony of the duties, the unceasing vigilance and the strictness of the discipline were a sore trial to the young troops, just as the athletic requirements of divisional training would prove too great a physical strain for the veterans of the last war."

"In the light of past performance it can reasonably be estimated that every ex-serviceman who joins the guard will release for service with the fighting divisions the equivalent of one and one-half young men who would otherwise be tied down to the jobs which the Veterans Guard has been asked to undertake."

"This figure is based on the fact that veterans, accustomed to discipline and familiar with army routine can be expected to be of usefulness immediately upon enlistment, whereas a younger and healthier man, of more use in actual combat, requires time to train."

Nine motorists were fined $2.50 each in police court today when convicted of parking infractions. One was fined $5 for not stopping at a red light and a pedestrian was fined $1 for walking against a traffic signal.

AN ARTIST'S PORTRAIT of Ann Sothern and Red Skelton on the set of M-G-M's "Maise Gets Her Man," now playing at the Dominion Theatre.

'No Greater Sin' Opens Tomorrow

"We make mistakes, we will pay the price of our folly!" This is what youth is so often inclined to say today.

But physical and mental agony, beginning with the first sudden numbing flash of horror-stricken realization and prolonged through years of slow recovery is a terrible price to pay for a brief indulgence of unrestrained emotion, no matter how great the temptations. Too often, however, these things are looked upon by the younger folk as bogies, things which could never happen to themselves, until a dreadful awakening makes them realize the wages of sin.

And so, in an effort to bring more practical knowledge to men and women who are morally and physically responsible for their own actions, and perhaps of their children, the Health League of Canada are the sponsors of "No Greater Sin," coming tomorrow to the Capitol Theatre.

Epic Comedy in 'Tuttles of Tahiti'

The serio-comic experiences into which a Tahitian family is plunged when the black cock upon which they have bet their entire fortune turns out to be a "Ferdinand," provide the action for RKO Radio's "The Tuttles of Tahiti," in which Charles Laughton is starred, that comes to the Atlas Theatre tomorrow.

Based on the Saturday Evening Post serial "Out of Gas," by Charles Nordhoff and James Norman Hall, residents of Tahiti for many years, the film provides Laughton with what is considered one of his finest acting opportunities.

YORK THEATRE
Walter Woolf King, Broadway singing star who appeared last in the operetta, "May Wine," is featured in the important role of Captain Sibirsky, Cossack officer in "Balalaika," which is currently at the York Theatre, with Nelson Eddy and Ilona Massey as the stars. King's voice will be heard with that of Eddy's in singing.

ANN SOTHERN IN ROLE OF MAISIE
The adventures of Maisie continue fast and furious in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Maisie Gets Her Man," latest in the series of which Ann Sothern is the star, and which opens today at the Dominion Theatre.

Sharing starring honors with Miss Sothern is Red Skelton, radio and screen comedian, who appears as an aspiring vaudeville comic. The teaming of Ann Sothern and Red Skelton is a "natural" and the first night audience left no doubt that there would be further demand for other vehicles for this pair.

CADET THEATRE
Bette Davis, who stars in "The Little Foxes," dramatic story of the early 1900's, now at the Cadet Theatre, was required to appear in one scene wearing a hat popular in that era, and which necessitated a large, flying bird ornament. Unable to obtain such an ornament commercially, Orry-Kelly, the designer, arranged to borrow one from the Louisiana state museum, where it had been on display.

RIO THEATRE
The Okefenokee Immersion Club of Waycross, Georgia, has sent diplomas to Director Jean Renoir and Actor Dana Andrews. The Immersion Club includes those who have fallen into the Okefenokee swamp waters and had to be rescued. Andrews spilled into the swamp seven times during the filming of 20th Century-Fox's "Swamp Water," now the attraction at the Rio Theatre.

song hits, including the popular "What to Do" and "I'll Pray for You," as well as a "bounce" version of the old favorite, "Pack Up Your Troubles."

The Andrews Sisters, Jane Frazee, Robert Paige, Gloria Jean, Leo Carrillo, Billie Burke, Charles Butterworth and Woody Herman and his orchestra head the cast.
